

CUTS HIS WIFE'S BODY TO PIECES

WOMAN OF MYSTERY IS WITNESS AGAINST FORGER

PROVES HEROINE OF OLD ROMANCE

A. B. Ralston Is Held to Answer for Felony.

Deep mystery enshrouds the true name of a fair witness who was called to the stand in the police court this morning during the preliminary examination of A. B. Ralston, self-styled actor and former manager of the Ragon Block, for forgery. At the time of Ralston's arrest, it is alleged that the woman professed to be his wife, and that she resided with him in a flat on Filmore street in San Francisco.

Previously, she had been known as Miss B. H. Kennedy and it was this name which was signed to the checks that have accomplished Ralston's incarceration.

HEROINE OF ROMANCE.

To Clerk Mott of the Police court, she proclaimed herself Mrs. Beatrice Agnew, and at the expiration of the court hearing she blithely confessed to the reporters that she is the heroine of a ferry boat romance of last December which culminated in her marriage to A. Agnew of this city after a courtship of one day. The records of the Superior court show that her wedding life was terminated after a honeymoon of but a few days' duration, when she sued for and secured an interlocutory decree of divorce from Agnew on the ground of desertion.

HURRIED WEDDING.

The wedding was the result of a sensational courtship on a Southern Pacific ferry boat. Miss Kennedy, as she was then known, was carrying a suit case down the stairs of the boat when she stumbled and was caught by Agnew, who was standing in front of her. The acquaintance thus formed ripened into an ardent affection and the marriage of the couple took place the next day in Alameda.

MEET RALSTON.

After her separation from Agnew she was employed for a time as a stenographer for the Republican City Central Committee, and it was during this time that she was introduced to Ralston by a Kennedy. Her maiden name, she said, was McCloskey, but for personal reasons she had assumed the cognomen of her stepfather, Kennedy.

On the 28th of July Ralston visited the garage of B. H. Morris in Berkeley and purchased a 1907 model Oldsmobile machine, giving in payment a check for $2239 drawn on the First National Bank of Berkeley and made payable to Ralston by one Miss B. H. Kennedy. The check was drawn for $50 more than the purchase price of the automobile, and as an accommodation to Ralston, Morris advanced him the surplus in cash. The purchaser of the automobile dealer that he had recently transferred his account from San Francisco bank to the Berkeley institution, and that if there was any hitch about honoring the check he would see that everything was righted. PRESIDENT OF FIRM STEALS $315,000

Failure of Concern Reveals Enormous Wrong-Doing of Financier.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The appointment of a receiver for the properties of the Belding-Hall Manufacturing Company followed close on a discovery by the creditors of the concern that its president, Jesse Edson Hall, had appropriated to his own use at least $315,000 of the corporation's funds. As far as can be discovered every dollar of this money went into mining stock, which was backed up with no tangible property, theatrical ventures, which made no money, and other securities which the creditors are willing to sell in a lump for something less than $4000. Indications yesterday were that Hall would not voluntarily return from Canada and that criminal prosecution would be instituted to bring him back to this country by the First National Bank, which holds notes of the company aggregating $100,000.

"BORROWED" FUNDS.

It appears that Mr. Hall has been "borrowing" the company's money for at least two years. There has been little effort on his part to conceal this fact. The money taken out of the business was secured only by promissory notes signed by Mr. Hall. As he has no other property than the $30,000 worth of Belding-Hall stock, which is worthless until all outstanding bills are paid, it is expected that the $315,000 which he borrowed and the $40,000 which he lent irresponsible persons—$355,000 in all, is a total loss. A pathetic feature of the case is the condition of the missing man's two children, who are living at the Hall home in charge of a housekeeper. Since Mr. Hall left Chicago they have received no word from him, neither have they received any money with which to meet the household expenses.

(Signed) "STEFANSSON."

Officers of the Geographical Society said they supposed the message had been forwarded by messenger from Herschel Island to Eagle City.

CLAIMS BOARDING-HOUSE MASTERS SEEK HIS LIFE

Sailor Rescued From British Ship by Government Victim of Murderous Attack While on Water Front.

(SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Joseph Ritter, who was rescued by the government officials from the steamer Black Brier a few days ago, was the victim of a murderous assault on the water front about midnight, which he claims is the direct result of his informing the authorities of the methods of Captain Shand.

Ritter had been spending the evening along the water front with several men whom he had never seen before. One of them, Anton Emanuelson, picked a fight with him in one of the places and the proprietor ejected them. The quarrel continued on the street and the men entered Hansen's saloon, on East street near Market.

USES KNIFE.

They were again ejected from this place and as soon as they reached the sidewalk Emanuelson hit Ritter a vicious blow, and the latter, to defend himself, drew a knife, inflicting a slight wound upon his antagonist. Officer Hannahan intervened at this point and both were taken to the harbor station after

CAR IN WILD RUN DOWN HILL OVERTURNS; TWO HURT

Workmen Who Remain on the Runaway Coach Severely Injured—Those Who Jump Are Saved.

(SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Four linemen in the employ of the United Railroads had an exciting ride this morning when a work car, which was standing on the corner of Clement street and Pt. Lobos avenue, ran away the distance of almost half a mile and finally turned completely over at the corner of Forty-eighth and Cliff avenues.

How the car started is not known, but the men, who had been engaged on the bridge in repairing the wires, had just come down to the car when it suddenly ran away. As it was approaching the curve at Cliff avenue, two of the men decided to jump, and landed in the soft brush at the side of the track. The other two, however, remained in their places and were on the car when it turned over.

Both were seriously injured. Charles M. Place had his leg broken, and William Fulton was wounded about the head and face and received possible internal injuries. Place was removed to the St. Francis Hospital, and the authorities say that his leg, which is crushed, may have to be amputated. Fulton was taken away in a car of the United Railroads, and up to noon he could not be located, and the exact extent of his injuries is not known.

BUTCHERS SPOUSE AND TRIES TO KILL HIMSELF

Rich Man Shoots His Wife, Hacks Up Her Body and Cuts His Own Throat.

CHICAGO, September 7.—Mrs. Fred M. Fish, wife of a wealthy retired broker, was found murdered in her home at 423 Lavis street, Evanston, at an early hour today. Her husband was found with his throat cut, unconscious on the floor of the bedroom in which the body of Mrs. Fish was lying. It is the opinion of the police that Fish murdered his wife and then attempted to commit suicide. He was hurried to a hospital, but has not yet recovered consciousness and it is doubtful if he recovers sufficiently to make a statement.

The cause of the tragedy is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. Fish were heard by their neighbors in a violent altercation late last night, and it is believed that Fish arose early today, and after discharging a shot into his wife's head he mutilated her in a horrible fashion with a butcher's cleaver. A servant girl declared that she heard the report of a shotgun early this morning and the cleaver was found lying on the bed beside Mrs. Fish. Mr. Fish formerly was associated with a prominent commission house, but had recently retired from business on account of poor health and attacks of despondency.

MRS. EDITH DUNPHY SEEKS DIVORCE ALLEGING CRUELTY

(SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Edith M. Dunphy began suit for a divorce from James Clay Dunphy, the millionaire son of Cattle King Dunphy, who was formerly well known throughout the State.

Mrs. Dunphy alleges that her husband has been extremely cruel to her; that he cut her hand with a razor in their home in this city, and that he had repeatedly unbraided her in public places. She cites one instance where he publicly cursed her in the Palace Hotel.

Mrs. Dunphy asks $1000 alimony pending litigation and $5000 counsel fees. She says that her husband is worth at least $1,000,000, and she asks a restraining order to prevent him from disposing of any of his property.

POLICE MAKE NO EFFORT TO RUN DOWN MURDERER

(Special to THE TRIBUNE.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Captain of Detectives Colby has not detailed anyone to look into the death of Robert Roy, a motorman employed by the United Railroads, who was found last evening with a bullet hole in his left eye in the Turk and Filmore street car barns.

"I see by the papers," said the captain, "that the man committed suicide. I have no officers on the case and have received no report of the affair."

It would seem as though the detective department was endeavoring to hide something in regard to the affair. Either Captain Colby does not desire to further investigate the affair, or else he is taking the word of the United Railroad officials that the man committed suicide.

The car officials, when seen this morning, refused to discuss last night's tragedy in any way. They say the man committed suicide. Only two men were in the apartment at the time the affair occurred, Alfred Roberts and Eugene Eggers. These men have not been questioned by the police up to this time.

Robert Roy, the dead carman, has been in the employ of the company only a few days, and was working as an apprentice motorman. He is thought to have come from Seattle.

CLAIMS THEY SEEK HIS LIFE

Emanuelson's wound had been dressed at the hospital.
Ritter claims that the men who spent the evening with him were in the employ of boarding-house masters, and that they were after him because he had informed the authorities in regard to the methods employed by Captain Shand of the British steamer Black Brier in securing men for service on his ship.

FEARS FOR LIFE.

He says he has been in mortal terror of his life ever since the authorities rescued him from the ship. He says that Emanuelson and the men who were with him deny that they provoked the quarrel or that they had any reason for wishing to harm Ritter. They blame him for drawing the knife and claim that they will prosecute him on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. They say that the quarrel arose from a dispute in regard to uniforms and non-uniforms, and that Ritter displayed a card showing that he was a union man.

Detectives Conlin and McGowan of the harbor station were detailed this morning to secure further evidence in the case.

SPERRY & HUTCHINSON CO.

The Originators of the Green Trading Stamps to Open a Branch in Oakland

The Sperry & Hutchinson Trading Stamp Company, which is about to be established in Alameda county, is one of the most substantial concerns in the world. They represent a paid up capital of $1,000,000 and by reference to Irons and Street's commercial agencies, you will find them to be absolutely responsible and O. K. in every respect. With a view to getting at the merits of their proposition, and in investigation into their methods of doing business, the TRIBUNE has been presenting the following facts relative to this concern, which has branches in every State in the Union and in the greater portion of the civilized world.

The system inaugurated and developed by Sperry & Hutchinson is about four years old and its development has been so rapid that the green trading stamp is now as nearly familiar to us as the United States two-cent postage stamp. Throughout the great cities in the East, the largest stores and their kind in the world have adopted the system. Among these, a few of national reputation and very well known from coast to coast are S. H. Kresge Co., of New York; J. C. Penney & Co., Chicago; Wm. H. Macy & Co., Buffalo; The Clafin Syndicate of New York; J. C. Penney & Co., New York; and the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., with 160 branch stores in New York city. These are a few of the hundreds of retail establishments who are enjoying the benefits of the system.

In the manufacturing and articles whose trademarks are familiar to every household in America early coupons which are redeemable for S. & H. stamps. This is true of Babbitt's Soap, Eagle Brand's Extract of Beef, Babst Malt Extract, the American Tobacco Company's products, and hundreds of others. The fact that these large manufacturers have also adopted it is a powerful and powerful argument in its favor. The Sperry & Hutchinson green trading stamp system is one by which each and every merchant who is anxious to build up a clientele of cash buyers may offer this stamp buyer a cash discount on every purchase made. This discount takes the form of a green stamp of a certain denomination, representing to the buyer a percentage of his purchase returned to him. Sperry & Hutchinson step in at this point with a line of premiums displayed in handsome "appointment" salesrooms where these stamps are redeemed or exchanged for any article that might suit one's taste or fancy.

BREAK DIRTY FOR NEW ROAD

San Diego in Holiday Attire as Result of Future Railway.

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 7.—San Diego holds a holiday this afternoon and business is generally suspended while the people parade to the foot of Twenty-eighth street where the first earth was turned by Mayor John Forward for the grading of the San Diego and Arizona Railway. The John D. Hooker bulldozer pulled out here to Yuma along the southern boundary line of the State.

The project launched only nine months ago, has progressed rapidly. A million dollars has been spent for right of way and half a million for surveys and tunnel work in the mountains.

PROVES HEROISM

Following day Ralston visited the garage again and took away $200 worth of automobile supplies, for which he tendered another check, also bearing Miss Kennedy's signature for $248. Morris again accommodated Ralston with the change, $48, in cash. Ralston left after making arrangements to get his car a few days later. In the meantime the checks were returned to Morris from the bank marked "no funds." In view of Ralston's explanation as to the recent transfer of his accounts the auto dealer was not particularly impressed by this fact and awaited Ralston's next visit, confidently expecting that everything would be arranged satisfactorily.

FAILED TO APPEAR.

Ralston, however, failed to appear at the appointed time and when, a few days later, Morris met him on the street, he made some halting reply about the bank's refusal to honor the checks and wound up by offering to return the amount of the cash change that Morris had advanced him, and call the deal off. Morris refused to entertain a proposition of this kind and Ralston's arrest followed. After hearing the testimony this morning Police Judge Samuels held Ralston to answer in the Superior Court under $2000 bonds. The defendant was formerly employed in the haberdashery establishment of Paul Carroll in this city and later acted as manager of the Albany Club. He was arrested by Detective Green in San Francisco on August 13. At that time he and the Miss Kennedy of the many aliases were living as man and wife.

LOVE DOWNS CHURCH EDICT

DENVER, Sept. 7.—After a courtship of years James A. Doyle, the mining millionaire, and Miss Marie Duffy, a telephone girl, have decided no longer to consider the objections of the Catholic Church to their wedding, and will soon become man and wife.

The marriage license was issued to the couple yesterday, although both refused to admit that they contemplate matrimony.

The license, however, is mere indication that Doyle and Miss Duffy will disregard the laws of their church forbidding their marriage because of the alleged fact that Doyle is a divorced man and that the calling of a session of the ecclesiastical court of this diocese one year ago last February to pass upon their right to wed under the laws of the church was to no purpose.

If the license issued yesterday is used by Doyle and Miss Duffy the act will communicate both of them from the church.

On the application to marry, which is numbered 41,590 it is added in answer to the usual question that Doyle has been married and has a wife living, and that he was divorced in Denver in 1903 upon the ground of desertion. Doyle's former wife has remarried since the divorce and has been traveling in the Orient for months.

MOORS WOULD 'MAKE PEACE'

Proposal to French Commander Looked on as Ruse to Gain Time.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—A special dispatch from Casa Blanca yesterday received here this afternoon stating that the various Moorish tribes around that place had asked General Druce, the French commander, to suspend hostilities for the purpose of negotiating peace. The general, the dispatch says, agreed to remain inactive until tomorrow, when he will march on the Adder.

THINK IT RUSE.

The commander who sent the dispatch says it is suspected that the tribesmen, in negotiating with the French commander, are only seeking to gain time.

Vice-Admiral Philbert cables from Casa Blanca under yesterday's date that negotiations continue at Mazagan on the subject of the disputed ownership of the arms and ammunition delayed there. He adds that all the Moroccan ports remain quiet.

SAYS TEACHER BEAT HIS BOY

With his 8-year-old son, Llewellyn, whom he claimed was severely flogged by the teacher, C. P. Grant, of Alameda, visited District Attorney Brown yesterday afternoon to obtain some redress for the alleged injury he says was inflicted by Miss Alice V. Baxley, principal of Alameda School No. 2.

While the boy's back is badly discolored and bruised, Brown says he doubts whether the teacher is responsible for the injury. The District Attorney says the bruises appear as though sustained by a fall.

According to Grant, and the story told by the boy, Llewellyn was laughing and stepped out of line when Miss Baxley took him to her office and punished him.

ALLEGES WIDE STRAP.

The boy says that a wide strap was used with a large buckle on the end of it. He says there were no witnesses to the whipping. When the lad went home yesterday afternoon and showed his father the marks on his back, he was told to go to school and get a whipping from the woman principal, Grant said. The boy was sent upstairs to District Attorney Brown, who, with his deputies, W. H. Donahue and Philip M. Carey, examined the boy's back.

ATTORNEY DOUBTS.

"While a great injustice can be done a teacher," said Brown, after examining the lad, "I will give the story told by the boy my careful consideration before I take any action that might seriously hurt the teacher's reputation. What looks to me as severe bruises, might have been caused by a fall rather than a beating."

"The boy has a large lump on the back of his head. There are no welts and I doubt very much whether any teacher could inflict such bruises with a strap. I will give Miss Baxley an opportunity to explain the matter."

WRITES TEACHER.

By this Brown dictated a letter to Miss Baxley asking her to be present at his office Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. He will also have Grant and the boy present at that time.

"I have found during the time I have taught school," said Chief Deputy District Attorney Donahue, who saw the bruises, "that very often too much blame is placed on the teacher. I have discovered that in many cases boys would get in a fight or fall and go home and show their bruises and injuries to their parents, declaring that the teacher inflicted it."

WOMAN DEFENDED.

The matter was not officially reported to County Superintendent of Schools Geo. W. Frick, but he said when he was informed of the affair: "I do not believe that Miss Baxley would use a strap and buckle to punish a child. I have discovered that in many cases boys would get in a fight or fall and go home and show their bruises and injuries to their parents, declaring that the teacher inflicted it."

"Miss Baxley is one of the most efficient principals in the county department, and I cannot give too much credit to the accusation of the boy."

FATHER INDIGNANT.

Grant was very indignant, and says the principal overstepped her privileges in beating the child.

"I will take him to a doctor now," said Grant as he left the District Attorney's office, "and have a careful examination made of the bruises. My boy is too small and delicate to endure such treatment. I would never beat him that hard myself."

CROWDS SEE MILLIONS MOVE

(SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—A large crowd of people watched the transferring of $3,000,000 from the United States mint to the office of City Treasurer Bantel this morning. The transfer was made by order of Director Leach of the San Francisco branch mint and by 12 o'clock the money was reposing safely in the city and county vault.

MR. HENRY'S POSITION IN RELATION TO HIS FEES

The San Francisco 'Town Talk' Discusses the Matter in This Week's Issue in a New Way.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—The following article appeared in Town Talk today:

"Mr. Henry I submit should assuage himself. He only imagines that he is being unjustly treated. He confounds fair criticism with abuse. If his critics were animated by the spirit of recklessness to which he gives rein, and inclined to base charges on agreeable assumption they would accuse him of accepting remuneration from Spreckels and Phelan. And for him to do that would be a crime; for Mr. Henry is an official of this city government, an assistant to Mr. Langdon. It would be difficult to conceive a more heinous offense than that of posing as a disinterested prosecutor merely intent on seeing justice done while actually being spurred by private funds to compass the ends of private individuals. A privately hired prosecutor in the guise of an official prosecuting attorney could take many unfair advantages; and proof that a conviction had been procured by such an impostor would I believe necessitate the setting aside of the verdict. Mr. Henry, though a man of small means, solemnly avows that he is giving all his time to the dear people without the expectation of pecuniary reward. He threw up his job in Washington to purify this city, and the job may occupy his time for years. It has been said that he does not accept even the salary of the office. Now this may all be true. I believe it is true. But I am not of a most credulous nature. I know that previous to joining forces with Mr. Spreckels and Mr. Phelan, Mr. Henry was a glutton for fees.

"Nevertheless I believe that Mr. Henry is getting no pay for being so angry and so patriotic. I believe it because he tells the people so, and because I do not believe that Mr. Spreckels or Mr. Phelan would deceive the dear people. Perhaps some sceptic will remind me that about the time the graft prosecution opened up Mr. Henry imported a partner from San Jose, a young man named Cobb, and that as the Cobb is not one of Langdon's official assistants it is legitimate for him to accept a fee, and legitimate for him to divide with Mr. Henry as a purely partnership arrangement. Of course it is fair to assume that Mr. Cobb is getting a fee. He has not been magazzined as a patriotic volunteer.

MILITAMAN NOT GUILTY

C. H. Davis, a member of Company F, National Guard of California, who was arrested for refusing to report for parade duty on Memorial Day, when ordered to do so by Captain Geo. H. Wetherington, commanding officer of the company, was found not guilty by a jury in Police Court No. 1 yesterday afternoon.

The case was the first one of the kind that has ever been tried in the local courts. Davis is pleaded that a soft corn had formed on his foot on the day before Decoration Day and that he was unable to march on the march. The jury decided that Davis was not guilty of a misdemeanor, but should have been punished by a fine imposed by the captain of his company.

TWIN TAKES BROTHER'S PLACE AT WEDDING

PARIS, Ill., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Ada Thomas, of Chrlaman, Edgar county, complainant in a suit for divorce from Calvin Thomas, declared yesterday that she was tricked into marrying the defendant, who closely resembles his twin brother, Alvin Thomas, and that she did not discover the mistake until after the marriage ceremony.

After a courtship lasting about three months, Mrs. Thomas says she made an appointment to meet Alvin here and they were to go to Charleston to marry. It develops that Alvin's ardent was cooled and he sent Calvin to meet his fiancée at the train.

BOBBY BURNS

the punster, says that his namesake, Detective Burns, is "making good." The burning question, however, is: "Will they stay good?" Everyone but the professional bad man wants to see an era of purer society as well as purer foods and purer politics.

The funny part of it is, we must judge fairly all of these things by results rather than by standards. You can't easily detect a good citizen or a pure politician, and you can't rely on reputations (which are made and unmade), but in the case of good things to eat, we may rely pretty safely on the maker's or the vendor's name and reputation. Take Lehnhardt, for example. Lem has established a standard of excellence in confections and ices which is not at all likely to fluctuate. I must be around there now for some chocolate creams.

1109 BROADWAY.

It would be legitimate for him to contribute a little of Mr. Spreckels' good money as his share of the rent of the private office which he occupies with Mr. Henry. Mr. Henry would not accept more.

"If the suggestion which I have hinted at were made to me respecting the method by which Mr. Henry might be remunerated, I should not consider it for a moment. Such a method of beating the devil about the stump would be a species of dissembling that could not be conceived by Mr. Henry, or Mr. Spreckels or even by Mr. Phelan. To assume that these gentlemen would thus dissemble is to assume in my opinion that they are infinitely worse than Ruff. Perish the assumption! The honor of these gentlemen is inflexible. They could not, like the augurs of Rome laugh in one another's face every time they met. No, Mr. Henry is working for the people without pay, and if the Supreme Court does not come to his relief he will either have to resign his job and become a pauper. Meanwhile I am content that he should flutter through his little day and be carried as far beyond his natural place as the intrigues of his associates or the caprice of the public can effect.

I believe it because he tells the people so, and because I do not believe that Mr. Spreckels or Mr. Phelan would deceive the dear people. Perhaps some sceptic will remind me that about the time the graft prosecution opened up Mr. Henry imported a partner from San Jose, a young man named Cobb, and that as the Cobb is not one of Langdon's official assistants it is legitimate for him to accept a fee, and legitimate for him to divide with Mr. Henry as a purely partnership arrangement. WOMAN IN ADDRESS URGES BONDS FOR ALAMEDA FIRST BOOM MEETING IS COUNTED SUCCESS

ALAMEDA, Sept. 7.—The first meeting to boom the passage of the bonds at the election on September 21st was held at the city hall last night. There was a large audience and many women were present. Mrs. L. N. Chapman, a member of the Library Trustees and a prominent clubwoman, was one of the principal speakers and gave a clever talk.

The meeting was opened by Councilman Bullock who introduced Mayor H. K. Taylor as the principal speaker.

MAYOR SPEAKS.

Mayor Taylor said in part: "The presence of so many women here tonight shows that they are in accord with the proposition to vote the bonds. There are many reasons why the bonds should be voted at this time. The city is growing, and no city can succeed that will not make an effort. Business methods are needed by cities. There is now competition between cities and the one that is the most attractive and can offer the best will secure additional residents. This is why we want the bonds voted. This city can then take its place at the head of the municipalities of California. With a public park and playground, improvement in every department and the improvement of the Webster street and Bay Farm Island roadways, the city could be proud of its advanced stand."

"In years to come the electric light plant we own will pay for all the improvements. The plant will pay the city the principal of the bonds each year out of its earnings. We are not compelled to buy any certain place of property for a park and playground, and if we find that the price of any certain place has been increased because the city wants it, there is no doubt that it will not be purchased. The ordinance calling for the bond election provides the Council can purchase any strip of land for a park and playground, and the purchase of the land or Taylor tracts is not compulsory."

LIGHT PLANT.

OTHERS URGE.

Dr. F. W. D'Evelyn, George Payne and W. H. Noy urged that every voter cast his ballot on election day. Former Mayor W. J. Gorman declared the man who does not vote is not a true Alameda, and that the man who did not vote for the bonds was not a true Alameda.

Two more meetings are to be held before the election.

Lorenzen, and in the complaint she says that she recently discovered that her spouse lived for a while with a woman named Sarah Wisdom of Alameda and by her he had two children. Upon learning the alleged facts she says she immediately made preparations for a divorce suit.

Other divorce complaints filed were Frieda M. Bruch, against Josef P. Bruch, cruelty; Walter Steinmetz, against Myrtle Steinmetz, infidelity.

WALLS FALL, DRYING TWO

Part of Old Trinity Church Drops, Pinning Workmen to Floor.

BERKELEY, Sept. 7.—Caught by a sudden gust of wind, the two remaining walls of the old Trinity Methodist Church, at Fulton street and Alameda way, which is being torn down, collapsed yesterday afternoon, pinning two workmen beneath the ruins. R. J. Storm and I. S. Hartman were crushed beneath the falling timbers of the church, and although they both sustained painful injuries, yet their condition is by no means considered dangerous.

PINNED TO FLOOR.

The men were removed to Roosevelt Hospital, where their injuries were attended to by Dr. J. B. R. Richmond. They are still at the hospital, their condition being such that it was considered wise to remove them to the hospital. The men were caught under the falling wall and pinned to the floor and it was some time before they could be extricated.

FIREMEN SEEKING TO CREATE SICK BENEFIT

ALAMEDA, Sept. 7.—At a meeting of the Firemen's Relief last night a committee was appointed to enter with the fire and police commission to ascertain if that body would allow the firemen to have a sick benefit organization. At the present time the organization is an unincorporated one, but the members are considering the change to a sick benefit association.

The recently adopted rules of the fire and police commission prohibit such organization without the consent of the commission. A committee of seven representing each fire company in this city is to interview the commissioners.

Oakland's Industrial Harmony.

It is one of the most gratifying features in the experiences of Oakland throughout its recent marvelous progress and expansion that it has been entirely free from labor troubles. (The horizon has at no time been clouded by them. Perfect harmony has existed between men and employers in all union labor circles. The Building Trades Council has manifested great wisdom in all its dealings with skilled labor. The leaders of the interests it represents have avoided strikes by their readiness to submit any misunderstanding or cause of contention to arbitration and amicable settlements have followed. The preservation of industrial peace has, therefore, been constantly maintained.

Labor unions have been uniformly recognized. Wages for all kinds of skilled labor are good. Employment is steady. No labor of any kind has had reason for complaint. We have experienced no such thing as an industrial unrest. Oakland has, consequently, been totally free from strikes or any other disturbing element, and there has been no cause for them. There has been no interruption to the city's marvelous progress. New buildings and other improvements have been steadily progressing. These are active in every section of it. Expansion and progress are visible on every hand. There has been, therefore, no disturbance to trade and commerce and thrift in every part of the community has followed fawning. Harmony is the keynote of prosperity everywhere, and Oakland is today a conspicuous example of that fact, for at no stage in its history has its prosperity been as great and its future as promising on that account as it is today.

Value of Street Lights.

Abundance of light is one of the most important factors in a city's development, especially in its business quarters. This is demonstrated clearly in the older business streets of this city and particularly in their later extensions where electroliters have been recently installed.

Take Twelfth street, east of Broadway, for example. It has been raised from the obscurity in which poor lighting formerly kept it, and it is now growing to be as attractive an evening promenade to the east lake shore as any of the city's thoroughfares. Broadway, Washington street, San Pablo avenue and Telegraph avenue, in the well lighted sections, are crowded nightly with promenaders who spend their time inspecting the well lighted shop windows and the handsome displays of goods made in them. Plenty of light after sundown is a wonderful incentive to trade, and it is astonishing that this fact is not even more generally recognized. Whenever the owners of property on lower Washington, Broadway, Franklin and Webster realize that plenty of light after nightfall has a stimulating influence on property values, they will follow the example of the owners of property and the business men occupying the present well lighted thoroughfares, and install at their own expense electroliters along them.

Another example of the value of street lighting was furnished by lower Market street, San Francisco. Prior to about a year before the great fire that section of San Francisco's main thoroughfare, from Montgomery street to the ferry, was practically dead after nightfall. The introduction of a good system of street lighting had a magical effect upon it, and it was rapidly developing a popular and profitable retail trade under the inspiration of the new lighting system which was, of course, interrupted by the conflagration. The main business in the city across the bay is done on those streets which are best lighted. The suggestion which these examples contain of the value of plenty of night light should not pass the observation of every interested Oakland property-owner.

Secretary Taft is making the most of the gratifying progress made in excavating the Panama Canal. He is justified in doing so. The canal is being excavated by the War Department and under the supervision of army engineers. While the rate of progress is unprecedented, the work appears to be done with little friction. Few complaints are coming from the isthmus, and the dirt is flying with a minimum amount of noise. The health in the camps is remarkably good, which speaks well for the sanitary methods adopted. Even the muckrakers of the ten-cent magazines have quit reviling the canal management.

The Philadelphia Public Ledger cites the example of "Simon P. Chase" as one worthy of remembrance. Has the Ledger man got Salmon P. Chase of Ohio mixed up with old Simon Cameron of Pennsylvania? We fail to recall any eminent American named "Simon" P. Chase, and we are of the opinion that Simon Cameron was not exactly a model of political propriety.

Taft and Hughes has been suggested as a good ticket for 1903. It is a strong ticket, a high-class ticket, a winning ticket. It would be a return to the ancient combination of Ohio and New York so successful in years gone by. The names of Taft and Hughes would inspire confidence everywhere, and would be a guarantee of a progressive policy and sound statesmanship in the future.

"Some of the sharpest wit sprung by witnesses in a divorce case was unconsciously," remarked Judge Kennedy of Cleveland the other day. "One of the best bits I have heard for some time was three or four months ago in a divorce case that was before me. The plaintiff, the wife, had testified that her husband 'didn't treat her right at all' as she put it. When the husband was placed on the stand I asked him if it were true that she had treated her right. 'No,' he said, 'she was a fool. I didn't treat her right. If I'd treated her right I would have killed her.'"

In a Tennessee court an old colored woman was put on the witness stand to tell what she knew about the assassination of a hog by a railway locomotive. Being sworn, she was asked if she had seen the train kill the hog in question. "Yessah, I seed it." "Then," said counsel, "tell the court in as few words as possible just how it occurred." "To' Honah," responded the old lady, "I shore kin tell yo' in a few words. It jes' tooted an' tuck him."

The "climber," with determination written on her face, finally pushed her way up to her hostess and passed long enough to say, "How do you do, Mrs. Taft?" adding with a very impressive manner, "I've heard of your husband."

'Certainly, sir,' the bishop answered. 'Turn to the right and keep straight on.'"

WESTERN PACIFIC BACKS
BIG ESTUARY POWER PLANT
Railroad to Generate Electricity Here and on Feather River to Operate Its Trains.

The Great Western Power Company, which will establish one of the largest electrical generating plants in the West in the Oakland estuary, is backed by the Western Pacific Railroad, for which it will supply power for a network of electric lines in this State, according to recent authentic information.

Electric power will be used to operate the trains over the Sierras and through the many tunnels, thus doing away with the danger from fire and discomfort of smoke.

The first authentic information relative to the plan of the Great Western Power Company to establish on the Oakland estuary an enormous auxiliary electric generating plant was communicated yesterday by H. P. Wilson of the firm of Brown & Wilson, managers and promoters of oil companies, electric railways, cement manufacturing and other enterprises designed to open up new sections of California and to develop its resources in various directions. Wilson, besides acting as director in New York banks and other corporations, is assistant to President Edwin Hawley, who heads the Great Western Power Company, and is an Eastern financial magnate of the first rank, being also an intimate friend of the Goulds. Hawley is a director of the Western Pacific Railroad, though the California organization of which he is the executive, has no connection whatever, he claims, with any of the plans of the Western Pacific.

PLANT AT SESSIONS BASIN.
Regarding the purpose of the Great Western Power Company, so far as they refer to this city, Wilson confirmed the purchase of a tract of about seven acres lying east of the site. The tract is surrounded by water on three sides and is an ideal spot for a generating plant. The adopted plans contemplate a building 250 feet long and 100 feet wide, and large enough for all possible demands for many years. It is proposed to install turbine generators of 3000 horse-power each, besides the necessary steam generating plant. The auxiliary station is to be independent of the long-distance transmission and is designed to furnish power if accident, or some other emergency should interrupt communication.

TO COST $500,000.
In eight months the auxiliary will supply 50,000 horse-power and by October 1st over 45,000 kilowatts or 50,000 horse-power will be transmitted from Great Bend on the Feather river over the 140 miles of lines supported on steel towers extending in as near a straight line as it is possible for an engineer to locate. The company must expend $2,500,000 on the auxiliary plant on the estuary and will exhaust every modern resource of electrical science in order to make it absolutely perfect.

With the auxiliary the company will have a productive horse-power of 100,000 by May, 1908, one-half of this amount being derived from Great Bend. Wilson declared that not the slightest anxiety was felt as to the disposal of this enormous amount. It is wanted, and if we were able to furnish that amount today, there is not a horse-power that would not be in demand, he said.

TO RUSH WORK.
Work on the buildings on the estuary will be commenced immediately, and rushed to completion. Contracts have been let for turbines, generators, boilers and all other machinery required.

The Great Western Power Company is one of the biggest undertakings for the generation of electric power yet attempted in this or any other country. It is proposed to employ the waters of the Feather river, where it flows through the Sierras, and generate at least 500,000 horse-power. One of these is located at Great Bend, eighteen miles north of Oroville, where the river is diverted to flow through a tunnel 15,000 feet in length, whereby a perpendicular fall of 500 feet is secured. The tunnel has been enlarged so as to permit the entire volume of the river to flow through and has been concreted its entire length. From this point 50,000 horse-power will be furnished by October next and in a year this amount will be quadrupled.

PARADOX OF TIME.

Time goes, you say? Ah, no!
Alas, Time stays, we go!
Or else, were this not so,
What need to chain the hours,
For youth were always ours?
Time goes, you say? Ah, no!
Ours is the eyes' deceit
Of men whose flying feet
Lead through some landscape low;
We pass, and think we see
The earth's fixed surface flee—
Alas, Time stays, we go!
Once, in the days of old,
Your locks were curling gold,
And mine had shamed the crow.
Now, in the selfsame stage,
We've reached the silver age;
Time goes, you say? Ah, no!
Once, when my voice was strong,
I filled the woods with song.
To praise your "roses" and "snow,"
My bird, that sung, is dead;
Where are your roses dead?
Alas, Time stays, we go!
"See in what traversed ways,
What backward fate delays
The hopes we used to know,
Where are our old desires—
Ah, where those vanished fires?"
Time goes, you say? Ah, no!
"How far, how far, O sweet,
The past behind our feet
Lies in the even-glow!"
Now, on the forward way,
Let us fold hands and pray,
Alas, Time stays, we go!"

Tell Her Age?

NO

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 7.—"I shall not tell my age—so there!" exclaimed Mrs. Ella C. Highland in Justice Bestwick's court the other day, where she was seeking to recover a board bill. Her husband had given his as thirty-two and there were grounds to suspect that she was decidedly his senior. "It's a question that may properly be asked if per-nent," said Justice Bestwick, "but the court fails to see that it is pertinent. The question need not be answered."

"Take a Chance" All He Would Say

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 7.—George C. Rice, of Leominster, aged sixty-two, has original ideas regarding the marriage service. When he tried to enforce them at his own wedding the Rev. O. W. Hutchinson, pastor of the Methodist Church, called off the ceremony and escorted Rice and his bride that was to be from his house.

The question which stuck Rice was: "Do you take this woman to be your lawful wedded wife?" Rice replied: "I'll take a chance and do the best I can."

Rice called at the home of Mr. Hutchinson with Miss Clara Annie Wood, aged thirty-two, whom he said he wanted to marry.

Mr. Hutchinson told the story thus: "I asked: 'Do you wish to be married?' 'What do you suppose I am here for?'" replied the man. I arranged Mr. Rice and Miss Wood as they should stand. When I reached the vital question: 'Do you take this woman to be your lawful wedded wife?' the trouble began. When he answered he'd take a chance I told him that would not do. The witnesses with the people tried to get Rice to answer properly, and Miss Wood herself urged him to go ahead, as it would be all over in a minute. Then I told them I would not marry them, and they left."

And Thus This Youth Lost His Blushing and Pretty Bride

Woman Battles For Life on Roof With Mad Dogs

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Attacked by three ferocious bull terriers, Mrs. Mollie Berger, No. 48 Allen street, had to fight for her life last night on the roof of No. 53 Allen street, the tenement house in which she lives.

Mrs. Berger went to the roof at 7 o'clock to take her washing from the line. The dogs belong to William Brown, owner of the house. He keeps them muzzled during the day, but at night the muzzles are removed. The dogs are supposed to keep thieves from entering the house.

As soon as Mrs. Berger appeared on the roof the brutes ran at her, yelping fiercely. After knocking her down they dragged her about the roof. Several times Mrs. Berger gained her feet, but the dogs again pulled her down. Had it not been for the wall that borders the roof Mrs. Berger might have been thrown to the pavement below.

Her cries brought Girl Aid, Samuel and Rachael Schure, a little girl who lived in the house. At the sight of Berger and the girl the dogs ceased attacking Mrs. Berger and rushed at the man and girl. Rachael threw stones at them, but could not keep them off. She was bitten twice in the ankle.

Berger kept the dogs away from him with a club, and they returned to their attack upon his wife. She had fainted. Berger kept the dogs at bay while the girl dragged Mrs. Berger from the roof. As Berger turned to run to shelter the dogs buried their teeth in his legs. He kicked them and finally escaped through a door leading from the roof.

An ambulance was called from Gouverneur Hospital and Dr. Driscoll attended the three injured persons. Mrs. Berger was found to be seriously injured and she suffered greatly from shock.

Girl in Disguise Visits Monastery

DUBUQUE, Ia., Sept. 7.—Miss Mary Channing, of Pittsburg, is the first woman to set foot within the monastery of the Trappist Monks, which stands about twelve miles from this city. In entering the monastery she defied an iron-clad rule of the order.

Every summer hundreds of Dubuque residents and visitors who come to the city, go to the monastery grounds to while away a day in the shadowed retreat. While men and women are admitted to the main grounds, men only are admitted to the abbey.

Miss Channing is a literary woman. Visiting the monastery grounds, she asked permission to go into the abbey. Firmly she was refused.

"I decided then and there that I should get into the abbey," she said. "There was but one way to do it, and that was to disguise myself as a man. I was a man, I suppose it was a wicked thing to do, but my curiosity got the best of me."

"I borrowed a suit of clothes. When I put it on I looked really more like a boy of sixteen than a man. I spent an hour or so lounging about the grounds until I became brave enough to approach the door of the monastery. I confessed I felt very shaky on crossing over the portals. But once inside my courage returned."

HOW SHE ACTED.

I stuck my hands in my pockets, pulled my hat down over my eyes and looked seriously at the surroundings. A good old monk offered to show me around. He never dreamed that underneath the soft white flannel coat that I wore the heart of a girl was beating. I took his arm and quietly we walked through the abbey. It was very dark inside the monastery and the shadows crept mysteriously along the walls. We paused at the chapel door. I wanted to go in, but I couldn't because I would have to remove my hat. That would have revealed by long hair, which I had carefully concealed beneath the hat. Inside the chapel I saw the monks bending in prayer.

every night in the supply of eclairs. Patrons of the restaurant who dined late were told by an apologetic waiter that "We are sorry, but there are no more eclairs." From day to day the order for eclairs was increased, but this made no difference.

Mr. Fisher was waiting on the second floor for the elevator the other afternoon when he was almost knocked down by Gustave, the steward, who was so intent on maintaining the balance of a huge tray that he did not see his employer. The manager dodged in time to escape an eclairs bath and awaited developments. Straight to Miss Fitzgerald the steward hurried and with a low bow he deposited the tray on her desk. Her smile of thanks was the manager's cue to step into the spotlight.

"Ah, ha!" he cried, in a voice that would have brought down upon him that storm of hisses from the gallery, "I have you in my power at last."

The heroine wept, as a heroine should, and the hero sputtered as a hero should. "I love her," he said, "and she loves eclairs. What was I to do? No eclairs, no love! What is an eclairs between true lovers?"

Mr. Fisher grasped the story. Miss Fitzgerald admitted that the gifts of eclairs had won her heart and confessed that if the manager would forgive them she would marry Gustave. It was arranged that Alderman Richter should make them one in the city hall, and the manager gave an order for a big chocolate wedding cake stuffed with eclairs.

mother, "Is the child crazy?" Pertinent is the conclusion of Julia Ward Howe, who said that in view of the educational statistics relating to girls the force largely has been taken out of the argument that woman suffrage would be dangerous because there are "so many ignorant women."

College girls outnumber college men by several hundred in the college preparatory schools. Out of the 27,921 boys and 47,655 girls who were graduated from the public high schools of the United States in June, the national commission of education reports that 13,054 girls were preparing to enter college as against 12,747 boys. Owing to the growing tendency to take boys out of school early and put them into business, girls are getting more education than boys.

Bride Wanted to Wed in An Unusual Manner So the Ceremony Was Held in Fireproof Vault

EPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 7.—A desire for the unusual prompted Alice Moore, a belle of the Palouse wheat district, to ask Judge Thomas H. Brentz, of the Superior Court at Walla Walla, to perform the ceremony of her marriage with John A. Raymond, a rancher, in the vault in the office of the county clerk. Judge Brentz, who was a pony express rider in the early days, was not lost his love for the novel of adventure. He quickly assented and the service was read while the wedding party was in the steel-encased strong box.

Many others were assembled on the lawn when a wagon filled to the guards with ripe melons hove in sight, but the bride and groom did not remain to participate in the festivities that followed.

CONGRATULATIONS FOR THE STORK'S VISIT.

Congratulations are being showered upon Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fitzgerald on the birth of a son, which occurred early in the week. Mrs. Fitzgerald was Miss Orellin. The event is particularly noteworthy because the other child in the Fitzgerald family is a daughter, the second child, also a boy, having died most suddenly a year or so ago. Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald were heartbroken over their baby son's death, and this little boy comes to make them happy again.

Rev. and Mrs. Clifton Macon are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, which also occurred this week. Mrs. Macon was Miss Janet Bruce, a well-known San Francisco girl, before her marriage to the young rector of Trinity Church. This is the third child in the Macon family, but both the others died in infancy. Flowers have fairly flowed in on Mrs. Macon and good wishes are both hearty and sincere.

DEL MONTE POPULAR.

The popularity of Del Monte continues unabated, and several families have announced their intention of spending the winter there. Among these are Mr. and Mrs. J. Downey Harvey, Miss Genevieve Harvey, and Mrs. B. B. Cutter, also Mrs. A. N. Towne and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Worden.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey have been obliged to give up their house in Webster street, which they have occupied for three years. The owners wish to occupy it themselves this winter, hence Mr. and Mrs. Harvey's flitting.

Another change on Webster street is caused by the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Calhoun to the James Cunningham house on Broadway. The Calhouns took the Fred Beaver house in Webster street immediately after the fire. The Beavers went to Berkeley, but now wish to spend the winter in town and will occupy their own house. Another change is caused by the fact that Bishop Nichols has rented the new Episcopal residence to the Josselyns, who have just returned from Europe. Bishop and Mrs. Nichols have gone East on a short visit, accompanied by Miss Claire Nichols, who will spend the winter in the East. Miss Peggy Nichols will enter Miss Blanchard Gamble's school in Santa Barbara. This so lessens the size of the family that Bishop and Mrs. Nichols will spend the winter in San Mateo at their old home near the Divinity School, which is more convenient for the Bishop. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Josselyn and their many daughters will fill the Nichols house with gaiety this winter. There will be a wedding in the family, the engagement of Miss Gertrude Josselyn to Gerald Rathbone having just been announced.

These three large houses adjoin on Webster street—the Harvey, Beaver and Nichols residences—and the changes in their tenants will make quite a difference in Webster street this winter. Next to the Nichols house is the large Mintzer house, which was completed just before the earthquake, but was unoccupied last winter. The Mintzers have spent the winter in Philadelphia. This year they will be in their own home and are already making extensive plans for entertainment. They are charmingly hospitable people with plenty of money and the will to spend it.

The next house to the Mintzers is Mrs. Mountford Wilson's. This house was rented to the Fred Sharons last winter, but the Wilsons purpose to occupy it themselves this winter. Mrs. Russell Wilson will be in her California street home this winter, and will have as her guests her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Cadwallader, and Miss Emily Wilson, the elder daughter.

San Francisco will be quite itself this winter, with most of its big and elegant homes occupied by their owners. The big Hecht house in Washington street, which has been vacant since the fire, has been rented for five years at a huge rental and will again be a center of light and entertainment.

LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN.

Quite the most enjoyable amateur dramatic entertainment in years was that of "Lady Windermere's Fan," given on Saturday night in Redwood City and on Tuesday evening at the Colonial Theater, in San Francisco. The performance was much better than that of most professional companies and almost as good as the original production given at the old Baldwin so many years ago by Julia Arthur, Wilton Lockaye and the lamented May Brookings. The first rule for amateur actors and actresses should be, "Choose an interesting play." This was precisely what these Burlingame amateurs did, and the result was that the delightful play, with its witty lines, half carried itself, and the rest was carried by the perfect ease of these society people, who had merely to be natural to be perfect in their parts. To any one who has noticed the exonerating awkwardness of the average super in opera or play as he tries to make his entrance at a ballroom or reception scene, it was very agreeable to see these women "swim" across the stage as lightly as swallows. Of course, in the emotional scene between Mrs. Erynn (Mrs. McNear) and Lady Windermere (Mrs. Ames) in the third act there were limitations, but, after all, well-bred people are always quiet and well bred, even under the greatest excitement. Mrs. McNear, who took the adventures part of Mrs. Erynn was astonishingly good, especially in her entrance to the ballroom, where she is insulted by her own daughter, and in the scene, where she wheedles her son-in-law for money, and in the last act, where she plays at cross purposes with daughter and son-in-law, yet with a delightful touch of maternal affection, which makes your heart ache. Mrs. Ames as Lady Windermere had the ingenuite and did it beautifully, with great sincerity and appropriate timidity. Mrs. Ames, who was Norma Preston, is an exceedingly pretty woman, and while the part is not nearly as interesting as that taken by Mrs. McNear, it holds the center of the stage much of the time. Mrs. Spencer as the Duchess of Berwick was delightful, with a touch of malicious wit and asperity which was most taking. Lady Agatha, the charming young English girl, who never says anything but "Yes, mamma," was charmingly done by Miss Mary Keeney, who is said to be the most popular girl who ever made her debut in San Francisco and has half the town lying prostrate at her feet. Mrs. Willard Drown made a beautiful picture in the second act and had some sprightly lines, and Janet Hooper as the deaf old duchess was exceedingly good. The men were excellent—all of them. Allan Dunn as Windermere and Harry McD. Spencer as Lord Darlington were admirable, but the honors fell to Courtney Ford, Fred McNear and Royden Williamson, who as the blase and cynical society men of the period had most of the epigrams in the play. The third act sparkled and scintillated with them; the business in Lord Darlington's rooms was most natural and the whole like a scene from real life. Fred McNear was especially good.

The audience on both evenings was exceedingly smart and on Tuesday the crush of carriages and motors made it quite like a grand opera night. There were several dinners and many theater parties, and people came late and decolette and made the ugly little theater quite a flower garden for the nonce. Mr. and Mrs. William Hinckley Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Dixwell Hewitt, who are always in everything worth while across the bay, were in the Harry Tevis theater party. Mrs. Hewitt looked exceedingly well in black and white, and Mrs. Taylor wore a ravishing pink hat which was most becoming. The gowns worn on the stage were beautiful, especially those worn by Mrs. McNear, the most beautiful being the orchid gown. After the theater everybody was at Tait's, where it was as gay and crowded as possible. The entire company supped at Tait's at a long table decorated in red.

SOCIETY TAKES UP BOOK.

A popular theme of discussion in the Eastern social sets is Mr. William D. Howell's latest book, "Through the Eye of the Needle."

No one understands social conditions better than William D. Howell, who is among the most cultured of modern American writers. He has spent many years abroad and understands fully life among the smart sets of other countries.

He writes of his subject from a point of view on the inside, as does Edith Wharton, whose book, "The House of Mirth," was such a scathing, relentless review of the New York smart set.

The first part of "Through the Eye of the Needle" is a study of New York life in the homes of the rich as they exist today, and the last half represents what might be.

One could wish, however, that in this same last part every one did not have to be fed on mushrooms! An "Altaria" on a mushroom diet leaves much to be desired.

But Mr. Howell's doctrine of work for everybody is a sound one, even though he does send "my Lady Millionaire" into the kitchen to do her own work.

MISS M. MELLMAN

"Altaria" is not as well drawn as New York—the latter Mr. Howell knows thoroughly—and what is true of the New York social set is true of America in general.

One may not altogether agree with Mr. Howell's conclusions, but some of them are certainly worth quoting, especially some of his paragraphs regarding American women:

"The American policy embodies the belief that all men are born equal, but the people live up to the ideals of Europe that men are born socially unequal. It is in the social and domestic life that Europe prevails. And here, I think, is the severest penalty America must pay for excluding women from political affairs. For women are, at once, the best and the worst Americans—the best because their hearts are the purest, the worst because their heads are the iddest. With all their cultivation, the American women have no real intellectual interests, but only intellectual fads; and while they certainly think a great deal, they reflect little, or not at all.

"The inventions and improvements which have made their household work easy, the wealth that has released them in such vast numbers from work altogether, has not enlarged them in a sphere of duties, but has left them with their quickened intelligence, the prey of the trivialities which engross the European women, and which have formed the life of the sex hitherto in every country where women have an economical and social freedom without the political freedom that can alone give it dignity and import. They have a great deal of beauty, and they are inconsequently charming; I need not tell you that they are romantically heroic, or that they would go to the stake for a principle if they could find one, as willingly as any martyr of the past; but they have not much more perspective than children, and their reading and their talk about reading seem not to have broadened their mental horizons beyond the old sunrise and the old sunset of the kitchen and the parlor.

"In fine, the American household is what the American woman makes it and wills it to be, whether she wishes it to be so or not. For I often find that the American woman wills things that she in no wise wishes.

"We haven't socially evolved from ourselves; we've evolved from the Europeans, from the English. I don't think you'll find a single society rite with us now that had its origin in our peculiar national life, if we have a peculiar national life—I doubt it sometimes. Our breakfast is English; we have the English lunch, which is really our undersized English dinner. "The afternoon tea is English again, with its troops of eager females and stray, reluctant males, though I believe there are rather more men at the English teas, owing to the larger leisure class in England.

"And our dinner is but the dinner of our mother country.

"And our evening reception, is now as the English have it, for the people who have not been asked to dinner.

"However, the American woman is always American, and she is always in society. The men enjoy themselves well enough in society when they get there, though they do grumble terribly about being obliged to dress.

"We have nothing national that is not connected with the life of work, and when we begin to live the life of pleasure we must borrow from the people abroad, who have always lived the life of pleasure."

It has been suggested to Mr. Howell, however, that we still have the "Thanksgiving dinner," and surely that may be regarded as a "national event," though there are occasionally apologies for the turkey!

So much for Mr. Howell, one of the most thoughtful writers of today. We have another picture of New York social life given us by Prince Wilhelm of Sweden, one of the most observant of recent foreign visitors.

In a notable interview, the prince expressed his admiration of American women, who, he said, were better looking and better dressed than those of any other country he had ever visited. But to quote from the prince's interview:

"It is very fascinating. Never had I thought I would find so much life as I have found here. Everybody is busy, Everybody takes pride in doing his very best, and everybody seems bright and happy. If you call your working people poor, I find them more happy in your country than I have seen them in others."

MRS. CLIFT IN GERMANY.

Mrs. William Clift, Mrs. Lee Cole Burnham, and Miss Jean Clift have been making a tour of Germany in their motor car, which is altogether the most satisfactory way of seeing a country nowadays.

After an interesting stay in Cologne, they went on to Berlin, where they spent the month of August. The Clifts are very fond of Dresden, where Mrs. Clift spent last winter and where she has many friends.

Mrs. Clift and her daughters will leave in the near future for Dresden, where they will remain until they sail for America on October 8. Mrs. Clift and Miss Jean Clift have been abroad three years, traveling leisurely whenever they chose to, and spending their winters in Dresden, where Jean Clift has made much progress in her musical studies.

Mrs. Clift and her daughters will be welcomed home by many friends who have greatly missed them in their prolonged absence.

WE ARE A RICH NATION.

What a rich nation we are to be sure! The American season is over in Europe, and there have been at least Macdonald, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stolz, Captain and Mrs. Minor Goodall, Mr. and Mrs. James McElroy, Miss Margaret Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parcells, Mr. and Mrs. Wickham Havens, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Havens, Mr. and Mrs. James Allen, Miss Marlette Havens, Mr. and Mrs. John Dibert, Miss Elizabeth McNear, Mr. and Mrs. Edson Adams.

PICTURESQUE BUNGALOW.

The picturesque bungalow built this summer at Santa Cruz for the W. S. Goodfellow has been completed and will make an ideal summer home. Mr. Goodfellow is very fond of yachting, and that has come to be a favorite amusement on the beautiful Monterey bay.

THE JOYS OF MOTORING.

The A. A. Moores were the first to appreciate the joys of motoring, and the first to make the long expeditions through the country, which is now the delight of so many enthusiastic automobilists.

A. A. Moore, Jr., has had many motor cars, some of the finest French machines in the State having been owned by him.

The A. A. Moores are at present making an automobile trip through Lake county, and have been this week at Highland Springs.

MRS. J. P. H. DUNN AT ST. HELENA.

Mrs. J. P. H. Dunn and her little daughters are in St. Helena, where they are spending some weeks at Villaret as the guest of Mrs. Dunn's mother, Mrs. Remi Chahot.

MRS. WOODBURY AT SANTA CRUZ.

Mrs. Charles J. Woodbury, one of the leading officers of the Ebell Club, is at Santa Cruz and, with her daughter, Ruth Woodbury, is spending a month at the Sea Beach Hotel.

They were joined last week by Mr. Woodbury, Mr. E. Y. Gibson, Mr. de Laverga, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Edward de Laverga.

GUESTS AT THE VENDOME.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Orrick were recently guests at the Hotel Vendome in San Jose. The Orricks have spent many week ends this summer at Los Gatos, where they have been guests of the Oliver Orricks at their country home, Vista del Valle, in the foothills near San Jose.

RETURN FROM DEL MONTE.

Doctor and Mrs. Benjamin Ide Wheeler and Miss Lucy Sprague returned recently from a trip to Del Monte.

Miss Sprague is dean of the Associated Women Students, and her coming to Berkeley has done much to raise the social standard of the girls at the University.

They pay more regard to social conventions, and they realize that intellectual advancement is not all of life.

The little courtesies, the little amenities, the thoughtful regard for the comfort of others, go far to dignify life, and they are of more importance to the girl student of today than all the ancient history that ever happened.

MR. AND MRS. DE YOUNG TO RETURN.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. De Young and their daughters, who have spent the summer abroad, are to return to California, and expect to be here early in the autumn. They left Paris last week, and are sailing for New York on the Adriatic.

MRS. BUTTERS TO CLOSE ENGLISH HOME.

Mrs. Henry Butters is planning to close the English country home in which she has spent the summer early in September. She has entertained many English and American visitors there this summer, and she has been an ideal hostess. Mrs. Butters and her daughters will sail for America late in September, and Mrs. Butters will open Alta Vista some time in October.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Butters have been in Washington, D. C., and will return to California in September.

ENGAGEMENT OF PAULINE FORE.

One of the important announcements of the week was, of course, that of the engagement of Mr. James K. Moffitt and Miss Pauline Fore.

It was hardly unexpected—an engagement very seldom is—and it arouses an unusual degree of interest, since both Mr. Moffitt and Miss Fore are so well known here.

The Moffitt family have been prominent in the history not only of our city, but of the State, and the late James Moffitt was one of the pioneers who helped to make our State what it is today, and who blazed the trails for the younger generation.

Mrs. Moffitt has made her own place in Oakland's development. She is a very cultured woman, and a good student, having kept pace with her children, even in their University days.

James Moffitt is a splendid fellow, a fine type of the young American citizen. He is a man of uncompromising standards, well bred, well educated, able in many ways, and most generous always to relatives and friends. From good cause finds in him a helping hand. He is the last of the Moffitt children, who have been brought up in the old home, to set up a household of his own.

Doctor Herbert Moffitt has a beautiful home in San Francisco, and a country home at Tahoe.

Mrs. John Humphreys Lynch, who was formerly Lucy Moffitt, has a beautiful country home in Ridgefield, Connecticut, and a town house in New York.

Mrs. George Doubleday, formerly Alice Moffitt, makes her permanent home in New York City, and only comes to this coast at rare intervals.

The old Moffitt home is in the heart of the business district now, and will no doubt go the way of old homes which stand in the path of progress.

Pauline Fore has long been considered one of the very beautiful girls of Oakland, and besides being very pretty indeed, she is also very intellectual. She is a good musician, and used to sing for charity with Mrs. Herbert Brown, formerly Florence Sharon.

Miss Fore is also literary, and she has kept up her literary studies with Ethel Valentine, with whom she has been abroad for nearly a year now. She writes charming letters, and some of her poetry has much merit.

The wedding of Mr. Moffitt and Miss Fore is to take place in London, in the very near future.

Mr. Moffitt left for London on Sunday, intending to spend two days at Tahoe, where he is building a country home.

He was joined by his mother, Mrs. James Moffitt, on Tuesday, and both are now on their way to London.

Miss Fore is in London, and Ethel Valentine, who will probably be her attendant at the wedding, is with her.

MRS. HAVENS AT SAG HARBOR.

Mrs. Frank C. Havens is still at Sag Harbor. Mr. Havens has returned to Oakland for a few days to attend to business.

One of the historic old mansions of Sag Harbor was recently purchased by Mrs. Russell Sage.

People whose childhood was passed in Sag Harbor have a great affection for it, and always return in later years, if they can. Frank Havens' boyhood days were passed there, and that is the reason he built his summer home there, not far from the old homestead.

Mrs. Sage was born in Sag Harbor, and within the last few years she has made several donations to the old village; among other gifts was a hundred thousand dollars to the new high school. One hears that she is planning to erect a good hotel at Sag Harbor, as a hotel is badly needed there.

MR. AND MRS. CURTISS ENJOY EUROPE.

Among those who are thoroughly enjoying Europe this year are Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Curtiss, who have traveled extensively this summer on the continent. Mrs. Curtiss writes:

"We think of our Oakland friends over here often, and are sometimes homesick for them all. Do they miss us at home? Such a fine time as we have had traveling about for three months, and here we are back again, to spend two months in Paris. We have been to many other cities this summer—Rome, Berlin, Munich, Vienna, Budapest, Nice, Venice—all attractive; but Paris is the most charming of all."

Mr. and Mrs. Curtiss are not yet planning to return home, and their stay abroad may be indefinitely prolonged.

WOMAN I DON'T LIKE.

She was such a sweet, attractive little woman that every one fairly gasped with surprise at a thimble she the other day when she said:

"Sometimes I would like to write an essay, a long essay, and it would be a literary study of 'The Woman I Don't Like.'"

"And you needn't stare," she went on. "I've been meeting her so often this year that she has gotten on my nerves, and she is seriously interfering with my peace of mind if I venture into the social world."

"For, you see, the woman I don't like is the one who scowls at you over a bridge if you don't happen to play the right card. Bridge ceases to be an amusement with her. It is an occupation. If you cannot remember every card played, and who has played them, she gives you a glass stare; her eagle eye is on you, and she freezes the marrow in your bones. She is nice enough any other time you meet her; but at a bridge I feel that I am going to my doom when I meet her at the card table."

SOCIAL NEWS of the WEEK

ble. There is no sense in being so intense.

"And the woman I don't like is the one who boasts to you the very minute you meet her. She barely asks you how you are, as if it didn't really matter, anyway, and then off she goes, telling you where she has been, and what she has done. Now, in a place like this, there is absolutely no use in boasting. We know all about each other, anyway; there is no use in pretending!

The woman I don't like tells you all about some entertainment she is going to have, some dinner, perhaps, or maybe it is a card game. And she never asks you—simply makes up her guest list under your very eyes.

"The woman I don't like is always imitating somebody else. She might be interesting if she could ever be frankly herself. For each personality, if left alone, is sure to develop original phases. The woman who imitates is lost socially, and she is tiresome!

"Among the children one would be a copy cat; but when one is older, and is simply a reflection of other people's opinions, of other people's clothes, one is insufferably tiresome.

"And the woman I don't like is always late for a card party, and she likes to sail in when all the guests are assembled, and she makes her excuses so audibly that everybody looks at her, and incidentally they see her new gown and her big new picture hat.

"Or else she goes away early, marching up to her hostess with much eclat, and makes her adieu so loudly that everybody hears, and every one else immediately thinks of going home, too, and the first thing the hostess knows her delightful gathering is at an end.

"People are sometimes such sheep, and they do seem to play the game of 'follow the leader' endlessly!

"And I don't like the woman who tells you the truth about yourself—how badly you look, for instance! Nor the woman who won't answer her dinner invitation on the spot; nor the woman who thinks her own daughters are swans, and everybody else's daughters 'early ducklings'; and, above all, the woman I don't like is the woman who has a rare collection of 'little hatchets' and 'knocks' all her friends. Much she knows about friendship! One always feels like quoting that little verse of Stevenson's:

"There is so much bad in the best of us,

And so much good in the worst of us—

I've forgotten the rest, but it doesn't matter."

And the sweet little woman with the good disposition paused in her harangue, not because she had by any means exhausted the list of women she didn't like, but because she had no breath left with which to describe them!

MRS. BROWN IS AT HER HOME.

Mrs. Frank Brown has returned to Vernon Heights after a pleasant summer outing of two months spent at Glen Ellen.

Miss Katherine Brown returned home on Monday, having spent the greater part of the summer in Portland, Oregon.

SAN FRANCISCO WEDDING.

A San Francisco wedding which included many Oakland people in the guest list was that of Miss Lillian Saltonstall and Doctor Mattison, which took place in San Francisco on Tuesday evening. Miss Saltonstall was for so many years at Miss Head's school in Berkeley that she has many friends both in that city and in our own, and our side of the bay was well represented in the Unitarian Church, where the wedding took place.

The bride wore one of the most effective wedding gowns seen in San Francisco this year, a beautiful gown of heavy white satin, most elaborately trimmed in point lace. The long wedding veil of tulle was beautifully arranged, and came almost to the edge of the gown, and the wedding bouquet was of lilies of the valley and white orchids.

The color scheme of the wedding was pink, and so Miss Nadine Beiden made a very dainty maid of honor in a gown of pale pink chiffon, and carrying a great bouquet of gorgeous pink tiger lilies.

The four bridesmaids, Miss Gertrude Ballard, Miss Beth Livermore, Miss Nora Taggart, and Miss Grace Mattison, were gowned alike in dainty creations of white chiffon and lace, and they also carried huge bouquets of pink tiger lilies.

Among those invited from this side of the bay were Miss Head, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kales, the Misses Kales, Mr. and Mrs. William Pierce Johnson, the Misses Johnson, Mrs. H. K. Belden, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Belden, Mr. and Mrs. William Birt, Miss Russell, Miss Ethel Moore.

After the ceremony there was an informal reception at the bride's home, for the wedding party and most intimate friends.

Miss Beth Livermore came up from Santa Barbara to be one of the attendants at her friend's wedding, and two of the bridesmaids, Miss Taggart and Miss Mattison, are from New York.

Doctor Mattison has a beautiful home in New York, in which the young people will establish themselves in the near future.

MR. AND MRS. SMITH IN NEW YORK.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Smith, who have been spending some days in New York City, have returned to their summer home on Shelter Island.

Mrs. Smith has as her guest this summer her younger sister, Miss Marion Ellis.

MRS. FARR AT RAYMOND'S.

Mrs. Harry Farr and Miss Servilla Hayden are at Raymond's, in the Santa Cruz Mountains, and Miss Hayden is rapidly recovering from the attack of typhoid fever which kept her in the house so many weeks this summer.

JEFF MOFFITT AT CORNELL.

Mr. Jefferson Moffitt returns to Cornell University in September to resume his studies there. Mr. Moffitt has spent a very pleasant vacation as the guest of friends at their country home on the Thousand Isles, in the St. Lawrence river.

Mrs. Frank Moffitt leaves for the East in a few days to join her son.

MRS. BOWLES HOSTESS.

Mrs. P. E. Bowles was the hostess last week at the Country Club, entertaining at a very informal dance in honor of her daughter, Miss Amy Bowles, who returns to school early this month.

The invited guests were all young people, for the most part school friends of Miss Bowles, and many of them from her fraternity in the high school. It was a very jolly, informal dance, and at its close a dainty supper was served to the young people.

Miss Bowles is to resume her studies at Miss Spence's school, which is one of the finest private schools in New York City, and one of the most exclusive. It has an exceedingly good educational system, and many of the most representative and distinguished women of New York have been educated there.

The Spence School and the Merrill von Laer School are the two oldest schools in New York. Miss Brown's school and the Castle being now on the Hudson, and the Misses Eli's school being now in Connecticut.

All the Hush girls spent their closing years of school at the Misses Eli's school on Riverside drive.

From the Merrill von Laer School have come Martha and Katherine Calhoun, Anita Thomson, Mary Keeney, and Ethel Valentine.

Among the girls who attended the Scoville School have been Miss Elsie Kimble, Miss Chrissie Tart, the Misses Marie and Marguerite Butters, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Taylor Bell, Mrs. Richardson, who was formerly Bessie Gage, and Mrs. Fred Diekmann.

New York has also a famous convent for girls, the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Manhattanville. Among its graduates have been Anita and Genevieve Harvey, and the Misses De Young also spent some time there, going on later to a convent in Paris.

INTERESTING WEDDING.

One of the most interesting weddings of the week took place in Alameda Wednesday evening, when Miss Queenie Russell and Emory Elliott were married at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. K. E. Johnson.

The Johnsons came a few months ago to Alameda, taking the picturesque bungalow originally built for the Whitehills. It has been a most attractive home, and the Johnsons have entertained in it a most hospitable way.

The bride is a most interesting and beautiful girl and is the only daughter of Charles Byron Russell of San Francisco. She has been very popular in Alameda social circles, and since the announcement of her engagement she has been the guest of honor at a round of notable social events.

The Johnson home made an exceedingly beautiful environment for a charming wedding. The color tone of the decorations was yellow, and the house was very beautiful in tones of brown and yellow, big Barbanks sunflowers striking a most gorgeous color note.

The bride was a most attractive study. She is a very beautiful brunette, and her gown of white satin, elaborately trimmed in rare old lace, was most effective.

Miss Ruby Johnson, the bride's cousin, was the only attendant, and she was a dainty and very pretty maid of honor, in a gown of white lace over tulle silk.

After the ceremony, an elaborate wedding supper was successfully served under the direction of the George D. Hallahan Company, and later in the evening the young people left for a wedding trip to Tahoe. Mr. Elliott is planning to build a handsome residence at Menlo in which they will make their future home.

MISS WELLMAN ENGAGED.

One of the surprises of the week was the announcement of the engagement of Miss Ray Wellman and Mr. Farley, the announcement being made at an informal thimble bee given at the home of the bride-elect.

Mr. Farley is a relative of the E. B. Sanborns, one of the best known families of Fruitvale, and while he is a stranger to many of us, he is spoken of in the highest terms by his relatives and friends.

The Wellman home is historic in the annals of the county, and has been for many years one of the most beautiful of the Fruitvale homes. The grounds about the old home are picturesque and charming, and many fetes in the past have been given in them for charity.

Miss Ray Wellman is a graduate of Vassar, and a girl who is very cultured and altogether helpful. She is a great friend of Miss Ethel Moore, and has been the latter's able associate in Home Club work and also in settlement work. With Miss Ethel Moore she has traveled extensively, and one of their trips took them on an interesting expedition to the Orient.

Miss Wellman's sister, Miss Alice Wellman, is now Mrs. Beardsley, whose home is in Melbourne, Australia. While traveling abroad, the Wellmans met Mr. Beardsley, and Miss Alice Wellman's romantic marriage was the result.

Miss Ray Wellman has hosts of friends in this city, which has always been her home, and many good wishes are going her way, now that the engagement is announced.

MISSSES TOUCHARD IN EUROPE.

The Misses Marie and Lilla Touchard have arrived in Europe, and are spending the early autumn in a leisurely tour through the British Isles.

They spent some delightful August days in Ireland, and from there they have written charming letters to friends.

MRS. EDSON ADAMS ENTERTAINS.

Mrs. Edson Adams entertained on Wednesday at her home on Madison street, giving a luncheon in honor of Mrs. Victor Metcalf.

Mrs. Metcalf came to the coast to rest quietly after the great fatigue of a social winter in Washington, so she could not accept the round of hospitality which might have been planned for her this summer.

The luncheon at Mrs. Adams' home was most informal, and was planned that Mrs. Metcalf might meet a few of her most intimate friends before taking her departure for Washington.

Mrs. Metcalf lived among us so long, and so very quietly at her home on Harrison street, that she has many warm friends here. The Metcalfs have met distinguished people from all over the world, and many new friends have come into their lives in the past few years; but nothing of all the many changes has affected their friendships, has changed their affections for the friends of their earlier days. Oakland is in a very true sense home to them.

They have been with Mrs. Metcalf's mother, Mrs. Nicholson, the latter, one of the sweetest and most gracious hostesses our city knows. She is a most charming Southern woman, and her home represents what we have been taught to consider old-time Southern traditions of hospitality.

The luncheon at Mrs. Adams' home was beautifully planned, and represented a most informal reunion of guests who have known each other for many years.

Very handsome costumes were the order of the hour; one of the most effective, a study in white, was worn by Mrs. Oscar Long.

Other beautiful gowns were those of Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Wheaton, Mrs. George S. Wheaton, Miss Florine Brown, the Misses Wilcox, Miss Chabot, Mrs. P. E. Bowles, Miss McNear. The Metcalfs left for Washington on Thursday, going East by way of Oregon.

IMPORTANT SOCIAL DATES.

Already important social dates loom up on the horizon, and among others, club dates promise much that is most interesting.

The first club breakfast of the year is scheduled for the Ebbl Club next Tuesday, and Mrs. James G. Allen will be the hostess of the day, and will be assisted by a large number of prominent club women in receiving the guests. Among the guests of honor will be Hon. and Mrs. Joseph Knowland and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grant of New York City.

The latter were recently entertained by Joseph Rosborough at the Claremont Country Club. The large reception of the month is set for the last Tuesday in September, when there will be an elaborate "at home." The members will all have returned from summer outings, and it will be one of the most representative assemblages of the year.

The guest of honor will be Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, who has been for some years an honorary member of Ebbl. Mrs. Hearst has been away for four years, traveling in the Orient and in the Holy Land. She has had an apartment in Paris in which she has made her home when she was not traveling.

Ebbl's reception is in the nature of a welcome home to Mrs. Hearst, who is perhaps the best loved woman in all of California. She has always done much to promote the interests of women's clubs, and was one of the earliest members of the historical Century Club of San Francisco.

Ebbl's compliment to Mrs. Hearst is deserved, and the "at home" will represent one of the happiest of the Ebbl holidays.

LOOK FORWARD TO DANCES.

The young people are looking forward with much interest to the dances planned for the coming year. There may be all the receptions, all the luncheons, dinners, and teas imaginable, but they would mark a dull social season for the young people if there were no dances. The picture that appeals most to them is in the time-old word sketch:

"When youth and pleasure meet To chase the glowing hours with flying feet."

There will be the usual Friday night dances, probably three of them, the first to take place in December.

The Home Club will probably give its annual dance this winter, and one hopes that Mrs. Frank L. Brown may again be the hostess, since the dance last year was the most successful ever given in Oakland. Almost every family of prominence was represented, and for once we had a dance fully satisfying all social conventions, very well indeed, but which left no aftermath of bitterness and heart burnings. It was so successful that we ought to try it again!

The Country Club is planning an elaborate dance for Monday night, and the members are wishing that they could invite more than one guest, since each member has dear friends whom they would like to include in their list of invitations. But the rule has been made so that the ballroom may not be too crowded for comfort, and, of course, the members who pay dues for the support of the club should be the first consideration.

The dance promises to be a very brilliant affair, and will open the fall season at the popular club.

TRANSITION PERIOD.

Our whole city seems to be in a transition period, and neighborhoods change before one's very eyes. Apartments are going up in the most conservative neighborhoods, and social prestige from some of them has flown away forever. Meantime new homes are climbing up the hillsides, and new people by the hundreds have come here to cast their lots with us. Perhaps it is the effect of the automobile, perhaps it is the trolley car; but America is following the English plan of out-of-town homes.

Very soon New York will be a city without resident citizens. The expense of living and noisy surroundings are driving people out to the suburbs, leaving the metropolis the home of strangers and travelers.

Soon there will be no New Yorkers. Theaters are charging three dollars and a half for the best seats, and restaurant prices are higher than any place else in the world. American prosperity has increased prices generally, but in New York it amounts to highway robbery, so that very soon no one will live in New York from choice. It will always have a teeming transient population. These persons will fill the cafes, patronize the amusements, fill the hotels, boarding houses, and lodgings. Then they will return to the place where they live and berate New York as the most awful city in the world. And they will not be far wrong.

The same conditions, in a modified way, of course, exist here. Almost all the fine old homes down town are for sale in a quiet way. Many of them find the old-time quiet rudely disturbed; the busy hum of business industry sounds about them all day long, and sometimes far into the night. Business is spreading all along Oakland's level plain, sweeping before it homes historic in the social annals of the city. And so our people are literally "taking to the hills." Nearly all the people who are still "down town" own land in the hillside district on which they are planning to build in the not distant future.

There is to be an entirely new social alignment. There are to be new families in our smart set, new residence districts on the hills, new social leaders, and while the transition cannot be pleasant for some people, most of us will welcome the change.

The big earthquake precipitated the transition period, and one is glad of it now, remembering much that was little and small in the past, with its narrow horizons.

The bells of progress ring for social Oakland; they ring out the old, ring in the new!

THE MEDDLER.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh S. Smith, of 917 Fifth avenue, recently entertained at a dinner for their guest, Mrs. R. G. Kelly of Chicago. Covers were laid for Mrs. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. George Keiser, Mrs. De Costa of Stockton and Miss Iris Clair of San Francisco.

LUNCHEON GUESTS.

Mrs. Irving Wright was hostess recently at a luncheon for Miss Helen Parker, whose engagement to Lieutenant Finch has been announced. Those who enjoyed the charming affair were Miss Parker, Miss Cornelia Stratton, Miss Mae Perkins, Miss Fanny Perkins, Mrs. Arthur Rickard, Mrs. A. O. Leuchner, Miss Edna Fraher, Miss Lucille Dean, Miss Marie Ross Dean and Mrs. Challen Parker.

INFORMAL DINNER.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Dacre Holmes entertained Thursday evening at an informal dinner given at their home in East Oakland. The table decorations were pink sweet peas with maidenhair fern. Covers were laid for half a dozen guests. An hour of music followed the dinner.

SEWING BEE.

Miss Frances Williamson was hostess yesterday at an informal luncheon and sewing bee for Miss Edna Lehnhardt, who leaves shortly for the East. Among those who enjoyed the afternoon were: Miss Nettie Jordan, Miss Helen Plaw, Miss Clara Frank, Miss Anna Frank, Mrs. John Dibert, Miss Adele Ehrenberg, Miss Sadie Sigourney and the Misses Anna and Mary Englehard.

PRETTY LUNCHEON.

Mrs. E. J. Cotton entertained at a luncheon given at the Country Club on Tuesday. The affair was complimentary to her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Chase of Santa Cruz, who is at present Mrs. Cotton's guest. Mrs. Chase will probably remain for a week or more among her Oakland friends.

AUTO TRIP.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Whitmore and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fisher have returned from a most enjoyable automobile trip through the Santa Cruz mountains. Incidentally they covered most of Santa Clara and San Mateo counties, and had a most satisfactory and delightful trip.

COMING HOME.

Mrs. Ertz and Miss Susan Ertz are coming home from the East, where they have been for six months or more. Miss Ertz is to attend at the wedding of her friend, Miss Julie Persons, who is to be married to Sidney Henry on Saturday, September 17, at Mare Island.

FRIDAY NIGHT CLUB.

The patronesses of the Friday Night Club held a meeting yesterday to decide upon the parties for the winter season to be held at the Home Club in East Oakland. There will be four meetings during the winter, one in November, in December, January and February. The patronesses who have always been interested and capable directors for the success of this exclusive club are Mrs. W. H. Chickering, Mrs. E. M. Walsh, Mrs. J. F. Sims, Mrs. D. H. Mathes, Mrs. M. W. Kales, Mrs. T. C. Coogan and Mrs. Q. A. Chase.

WEDDING DATE.

The marriage of Miss Claudine Cotton and Charles A. Warren Jr. of San Francisco will take place Wednesday, September 11. Miss Cotton has chosen a quiet home wedding, at which about sixty friends and relatives will be present. Her attendant will be her cousin, Miss Thama McKell of Vacaville, and her brother, Aylett, will serve Mr. Warren as best man. Archdeacon Emery of the Episcopal Church will officiate. Mr. Warren and his bride will make their home in San Francisco.

MUSICAL EVENT.

Last Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cushman and E. James Finney, who is a cousin of Mrs. Cushman, gave an evening of artistic music, instrumental and vocal, at their home, 1245-Castro street. About a dozen friends were present to enjoy the informal program. Two young musicians from Reno, Nevada, Ernest Corvis and Mr. Van Buren, the latter a pupil of William H. Sherwood of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Redfield (ne Hill), both well known in Oakland,

Miss Alice Davies, a young violinist of more than ordinary talent, and E. James Finney, tenor, all contributed delightful numbers. Mrs. Cushman is achieving an enviable reputation for the excellence of her informal music affairs.

ABBOTT-ALLEN.

The marriage of Miss Theo. Abbott and Wilbert R. Allen took place August 29 at Santa Cruz. The ceremony took place at the Baldwin Memorial Parish house, the Rev. J. B. Orr officiating.

STRATTON-PARKER.

One of the most interesting weddings of the season will occur this evening, when Miss Cornelia Stratton and Carlton E. Parker are to be married. The ceremony will be performed at the bride's home at 8:30, the Rev. J. K. McLean of the First Congregational Church officiating.

The bride will wear a gown of white liberty silk, Irish tulle veil and carry a bouquet of pink roses. She will be attended by four bridesmaids in dainty gowns of pink and white. Miss Helen Wright, Miss Miss-Jorie Lynch, Miss Marian Walsh and Miss Maud Cleveland are the friends selected for this charming service. Miss Helen Parker, a sister of the groom, will attend as maid of honor. She will wear a lovely gown of pink crepe. William Crittenden, a college friend of both bride and groom, will attend as best man. The bridal party will also include six girls as ribbon-bearers: Miss Frances Gill, Miss Dorothy Moore, Miss Edith Black, Miss Lulu Lindley, Miss Dorothy Haw and Miss Ethel Merrill. Their gowns and ribbons will carry out the color scheme of pink and white.

The decorations are very elaborate, pink flowers being used most effectively in all of the rooms. About seventy guests will attend the wedding and the reception, which is to follow.

Mr. Parker and his bride have planned a leisurely trip to Seattle, where they are to make their home. They will stop at various points of interest en route, and will probably spend a week or more in the beautiful Shasta region.

Miss Stratton is one of the most popular girls who have ever attended the University of California, and has played a leading part in all student activities. Mr. Parker has been no less active among the men of the college. He is a member of the Golden Bear, the Delta Upsilon, the Winged Helmet and the Skull and Keys. He has gone into the banking business in Seattle, but is still actively interested in university extension work, and is officially connected with the college faculty in that department.

Miss Stratton is the daughter of Frederick S. Stratton.

HARDIN-WELCH.

GOSSIP FROM THE SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLIES

THE LATEST ON LONERGAN.

The Tom Lonerger stories appear endless and are always good, but the latest which he now tells on himself with no small pride in his shrewdness beats them all. It concerns the way in which he grafted $1,400 off the three cleverest and most rapacious of his fellow bootlers—Ruef, Wilson (railroad commissioner) and Jim Gallagher. Lonerger told the story in Frank Daunet's saloon, his headquarters, although the facts have been a subject for laughter in the inner circles for some time. Lonerger, who has been too generally pitted as a poor old fool, deceived even the prosecution in his tale of loot lost in a mattress. He took no chances on a possible disfigurement—but then an old story. This is the new one. When the rumor first spread that Lonerger had been caught in a trap, Ruef was in a fever. He sent post haste for Lonerger and demanded whether he knew that the money was a bait. Ruef thought it was the $500 deoy in the stable ordinance matter fixed up by Burns, which Lonerger expected momentarily to get. But this sum was never paid inasmuch as the same end had been served in the skating rink matter. "You must give that money back immediately to the man you got it from," said the frightened Ruef. "But I lost it all gambling," explained Lonerger. Ruef fished out $300 from his wallet and ordered him to be off immediately. One of Ruef's detectives followed the foxy supervisor over to the building where the bribe was supposed to be, saw him stand in the hall for a few minutes and walk out. On the street Lonerger chanced to run into Wilson, who was quite flustered. Wilson took Lonerger into the back room of a saloon, where he confirmed his worst suspicions. "You must skip the country and mighty quick," said Wilson. "All right," said Lonerger. "So I would if I hadn't soaked down all me money so I haven't a cent to go on." Wilson pulled forth a pocket-book, fingered out $400 in bills and added, "Now you get." The next morning, whom should Lonerger meet but Gallagher. "We are lost," said Gallagher huskily when he heard the story. "You must leave the city on the instant or they'll have you under arrest—it's our only hope." "Andy Wilson gave me some money because I haven't any," Lonerger lamented, "but it isn't enough. Gallagher led the way to the rear of a saloon and separated himself from $500 in nice new bank notes. "Go as far as this will take you," he urged, "and we'll fix the rest up later." That evening, while rosy from champagne, Lonerger was heard by those in Daunet's bar to call up Ruef on the phone and say in bantering tones, "Well, I'm here in town yet and $1,400 to the good and you'll wait a long time to see me out the city limits." But it was not until lately that he gave his version of the affair, which however had leaked out through the confidences passed between the three victims and their fellow bootlers.—Town Talk.

GALLAGHER OFF FOR EUROPE

I have it from both sides on good authority that Jim Gallagher is going to Europe just as soon as he has testified in the trial of Tiley L. Ford. The ex-supervisor's health is quite worn by his constant labors for the city's welfare, and Messrs. Spreckels, Heney and Langdon are quite solicitous regarding it. None are so keenly conscious of the debt San Francisco owes Mr. Gallagher as these gentlemen, associated as they have been so tenderly in the great reform movement for so many months. It was only upon his resignation from the supervisors that the self-sacrificing Mr. Gallagher was deprived of an automobile and chauffeur at the city's expense. His departure will remove a merry light from the prosecution's round table.—Town Talk.

LANGDON AND HIS AUTO.

District Attorney Langdon having been made the object of injunction proceedings designed to deprive him of the luxury of an automobile, promptly and properly moved in the public prints for a non-suit on the ground that the petitioner is not an absolutely pure being, as the records of a sister state will reveal; also on the ground that the petitioner is not inspired by exalted motives. Judge Dunne ought to be able to decide this point without even taking Mr. Langdon into his chambers for a consultation. The motive issue is one, the raising of which depends on the ownership of the ox that has been gored. In this case it is Langdon's ox and hence the obviousness of the soundness of the motion for non-suit. When an ordinary grafter raises the motive issue he is properly laughed to scorn, if not hooted for the absurdity of such a thing. While prompting the Danie! of the bench, Judge Dunne, in Mr. Langdon's favor, I must confess that I should like to try the case of District Attorney Langdon on a charge of indecently exposing his colossal nerve. If it can be shown that the supervisors over whom Mr. Langdon wielded the big stick, bought an automobile for him with any part of my money, which I contributed as a taxpayer to this city, then it is the decision of this court that he has far too much brass and impudence, and it is the judgment of this court that he should be pelted with dead cats for the remainder of his days.—Town Talk.

SOCIAL DIPLOMATS GOING ABROAD.

The fact that Mrs. Will Crocker and Mrs. Francis Carolan both intend to spend the winter abroad in litanies against a winter season flavored with delicate diplomacy. Mrs. Crocker and Mrs. Carolan have their names enrolled on the same side of the startled-up society ledger, and they are both such expert accountants with epigram and retort courteous that the sum of the winter's verbal flashes will not add up right during their absence. The prospect is very flat with these two leaders out of the counting. I hear that Mrs. Rudolph Spreckels, with a determination borne of the present tangle, intends to entertain more extensively this winter than ever before. Heretofore Mrs. Spreckels has not blown off her potential social energies in the open, but this winter it is her purpose to do things on a big scale so it will be interesting to watch her progress. I hear that Mrs. Rudolph depends on the presence of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Gus Spreckels, and her niece, Mrs. Spencer Eddy, to turn the belated tide in her favor. Mrs. Herbert Moffitt is probably the best liked of all the Joffie sisters and could much to add to Mrs. Spreckels' popularity but she does not care for society—in fact before her marriage she wished to take the vows of a convent.—Town Talk.

PLATONIC AFFECTION.

Is Platonic affection a cause for divorce? Will the exchanging of poems and clasping of hands make a co-respondent and legally break up a happy home? These acts are disputable. But Mrs. Agatha C. Whittall (of Alameda, Alameda County) has extended the principle to sitting on the Platonic lap of one George C. Peters, and says it works out that way too. Discussion of the same was first bruited among the neighbors. Neighbors are the most punctilious folks in the world. Whatever may be the deeds of the Browns, the Smiths and the Jones in their private capacities, no criterion therefrom can be had of their exemplary demands in public function as the people next door. And this is as it should be. Human nature must have its ideals, and what better place for their practice than on the other side of the hedge. Gossip, like Charity, begins at home. Then they diverge. Gossip had not gone very far before it became scandalized with the frequent visits of Peters to the starting-place of the Whittall charity. Grundyism never goes home to place itself incommunicado. Instead it went from house to house, scattering rumors, and finally a huge whisper was at the ear of Walter Whittall. He went and investigated. Not much sleuthing was required to find his wife with Peters in what she insisted was a Platonic pose.

And the custody of the two minor children was awarded to the father.—Wasp.

ENGAGEMENT OF MARTINEZ.

At an informal tea the engagement was formally announced of Miss Elsie Whitaker to Xavier Martinez, one of the best known of local artists. Miss Whitaker is the eldest of seven children. The father, Herman Whitaker, has been taking on some literary fame within the last few years, and his home on Piedmont Heights has been a rendezvous of writers and artists around the bay. Martinez resided there for a while after the fire; then built a bungalow nearby. One of his best-liked portraits is of the fair-haired girl whose youthful beauty is in striking contrast to his own swarthyness. Herman Whitaker recently married Alyse Hunt, formerly Mrs. John Bassett.—Wasp.

THE CO-ED. AT BERKELEY.

Now is the time of the year when the co-ed, that hypernymphic member of society, and most classic thing in corsets, is troubled with various charges, as of kleptomaniac, grafting, impropriety and general unseemliness. To an outsider it smacks of ill-advised severity that the co-ed be criticised thereby encroaching on the time otherwise occupied with study and meditation. If the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world, how much more potent is the hand that rocks the bedstead where poesy lies and knowledge rests.

Miss Lucy Sprague, their dear at Berkeley, has much to say about the discourtesy of the fresh-women, whom a morning paper epically terms "freshmen women," and its hated rival tauntologically writes of as "sorority sisters." It seems that girls are just as incomprehensible to a "dean of women students" as they are to a mere man. Why they should play pranks upon a venerable boarding-house mistress or be disrespectful to their instructors is not as important as whether or not they do so charmingly. Charm before propriety, every time. For, propriety is but one of the ways toward the former trail. And, if it can be eliminated so as to admit of a royal road to charm, so much the better.

One of the objections recently dealt with is that of rushing. It has been customary for the sororities to go for an eligible a la Comanche. Miss Sprague asserts that this is a disgrace to the college. It is not. It is a disgrace only to the sorority that is worsted. A stubbornly-fought rush, though, with plenty of blood and hairpins, would make defeat of some consoling glory. "Freshmen women," she is quoted (O scion of Hermes and Aphro-dite!), should enjoy a month of peace in which to formulate their ideas as to association. Wrong again. With all due respect to the dean in error, but, unless there are some undesirable and indecent sororities at the University, what matters it which is joined? What matters it whether the sororal entrant looks toward the Pi Apple Pi, the Sigma Stew or the Better Kickup Co-ed? Let the girls rush. As a co-ed once said, her only fond memories of college days were the rushes of the sororities and the plaid necktie of a German professor.—Wasp.

VISIT OF THE BARON.

Baron Drasche, the Austrian cavalry officer who remained at Del Monte for a few weeks, was delighted with that admirable hotel, but kept aloof from local society. Nobody could make the accusation that the Baron had either his weather eye, or the other one, fixed on any California heiress.

The Baron was one of the most interesting of recent visitors to Del Monte. He owns large estates in Bohemia and frequently entertains distinguished Englishmen there. He speaks English perfectly. On his recent tour of the United States and Mexico the Baron was accompanied by his friend Count Michael of Italy. The two friends motored to San Jose, Santa Cruz and other points of interest during the two weeks they made Del Monte their headquarters. No hotel in Europe possesses grounds as fine as Del Monte, the Baron declared. He will sail for New York this month and reach his Bohemian home in time for the hunting season.

The Austrian and Italian nobility are among the most exclusive of Europe and during Baron Drasche's stay at Del Monte, he and his friend fought shy, of all introductions. Even to some of the noted and bewitching maidens who make the summer at Del Monte doubly attractive. Almost the only acquaintances the Baron had in the hotel were a well-born young German named Willi Tropp, of Coblenz, who has been on a tour that will have lasted ten months by the time that he gets home, and an Englishman who has lived many years in California. Both Mr. Tropp and the Baron are quiet, well-mannered, well-informed and very agreeable men. Like many cultured Europeans on a first visit to the United States, they were rather startled at the independent air of the young girls at the summer resorts, and especially at the entrancing display of hosiery made by some of the belles on the verandas or even in the drawing-room.

Much to the Baron's regret, he and his traveling companion were compelled, through lack of time, to leave California without paying a visit to the Yosemite. Like a good many other strangers he did not realize that visitors can now reach the famous valley in one day by the New Yosemite Valley Railroad.—Wasp.

METCALF-BEVANS ELOPEMENT.

It is difficult to work up enthusiasm over the Metcalf-Bevans elopement. There was no fly-by-night message; no one-night stand in the path of pursuing parents. Nobody was arrested. The couple did not run away and get married; did not even get married and run away. They merely announced the marriage; or, more strictly speaking, admitted it. With Secretary of the Navy Metcalf in and about the City, a naval chase after his son William, Mrs. Wida Bevans, and her little daughter holding aloft the American flag and the union jack on a naphtha launch bobbing out to sea, a very pretty story would have relieved the present humdrum of inexorable prosecutions, cryptic strikes and gluttonish politics in the news of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Metcalf offered no opposition to the young widow, never having seen her; of course, there should be no objection to a woman one has never met. Mrs. Bevans has been keeping a rooming house in Oakland. William Howard Metcalf has been employed for some months in the Union Savings Bank of Oakland. His brother, who juniors the Secretary of the Navy's name, is engaged to the top-liner, Miss Butters Young Metcalf could have roved where he pleased in matrimonial circles. But it is not only when on the inside that love laughs at locksmiths.—Wasp.

SHE MARRIED A JAPANESE.

Mrs. Emma Howse Fong, widow of a Chinese, has married Yoshi S. Kuno, a Japanese instructor in the department of Oriental languages in the University of California. Ten years ago, Miss Emma Howse, who had just graduated from Stanford, married Walter Fong, also a Stanford graduate and a very bright and able student. He afterward became president of a college in South China, where he died something over a year ago of the plague. This plain little American woman seems to find favor with slant-eyed Romeos, for now she is a bride again. When she married Walter Fong there was a great to-do about it, and the newspapers were full of it and the "beauty and popularity" of the college girl who had become the bride of a Chinese. Some fear was entertained that college training might dispose our girls to admire studious Japs and Chinese. As a matter of cold fact, Emma Howse was a hard student who had been a factory girl in San Francisco and who had made no pretence of style or beauty. She selected practical courses of study and there were no frivolities in her life. Her experiences need give no one alarm that our college girls are in danger from the fascinations of Orientals.—Wasp.

BROKERS ARE WATCHFUL.

The brokers that congregate on Bush street are watching the antics of one of their number and his confidential clerk, who have been going the pace regardless of consequences for a month past. The broker is one of not long standing, but he must be making money to pay for the revelry in which he and his tall, trusted retainer have been indulging. The Poodle Dog and Marchand's have been patronized freely and the roads to the ocean beach scorched by automobiles containing the lively pair and their friends, male and female. All sorts of social complications are likely to result, as the gay broker's wife is expected home soon, and amongst other fair ones who have been whirled out to the Cliff House is the innamorata of a prominent real estate man who is said to be Othello-like in his jealousy. Another well-known business man and his Dulcinea are involved in the revels, and altogether it is a pretty kettle of fish. The observant fellow brokers are watching for the boiling over of it, which may furnish business for several useful institutions, including the Emergency Hospital and Judge Graham's court.—Wasp.

BUSY TIMES AT THE U. C.

The season of registration is over, and the University of California has opened its doors for the instruction of the new academic year. Members of the faculty, who have spent the summer vacation in various parts of the State, and others members who have been absent on leave, have returned, and are meeting and enrolling the students in their classes. Professor Moses, who is head of the department of political science, has spent the past year traveling in many sections of South America in search of data for use in the preparation of a forthcoming volume on our sister continent. He will offer this year a special course of lectures on the Southern Spanish colonies in their last decades. These lectures will be open to the public as well as to students, and will include the discussion of the following topics: "The Spanish Colonial System," "The Capital of South America," "The Viceroyalty of Rio de la Plata," "An Interior Province in the Colonial Times," "The Colonial City," "The Social Classes," "A Colonial University," "An Official Report on the Indians," "The Indian Revolt Under Tupac Amaru," "The Captaincy General of Chile," "The Great Captain General of Chile," "The Taking of Buenos Ayres by the English," "The Reconquest," "Colonial Industry and Commerce," and "Spain's Revenues from her Colonies." Dr. Ferguson, Associate Professor of Ancient History, has just concluded his work as a member of the summer session faculty of Harvard University, to which he was called on his way home from a year spent largely in the libraries and universities of Italy. The English Department will welcome the homecoming of Professor William Dallam Ames, who has enjoyed a half year at Cambridge. Professor W. J. Raymond, newly returned from an extensive visit among English and German educational institutions, will resume instructions in the department of physics. He returns with a rich store of memories of things seen and heard, and with a strong longing to get back to familiar scenes and tasks. Professor Lawson has spent the past year in work at Washington, D. C., under the auspices of the Carnegie Institution, but is now again in Berkeley, and is ready to meet his University classes in geology.

Several instructors will join the faculty this year for the first time. The following will conduct classes in the mathematical department: B. A. Bernstein, a graduate student of two years standing from Johns Hopkins University; James H. Tener, of the class of 1907, Yale University, with nine years experience in teaching; Joseph Lipke, formerly assistant in Columbia University. Mr. Oliver M. Washburn, a graduate of Hildale College, who has since been a student and fellow of the University of Chicago resident in Rome, a student at Bonn, Germany, and fellow of the Archaeological Institute at Athens, will begin instruction in Latin. Mr. William Clyde Willard, holding the degree of C. E. from Cumberland University, and that of M. S. from Lehigh, followed by a long period of practical experience in railroad work, will take up the duties of instructor in civil engineering. Mr. Thomas Sidney Elston has resigned his place as instructor in physics at the University of Wisconsin to associate himself with the same department at this University. He received his bachelor's degree here in 1899, and several years later took the doctor's degree at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. Dr. Fritz Winther, a graduate with honors of the University of Freiberg in Baden, and recently instructor in modern languages at the Oberrealschule of Freiberg, will assume the duties of instructor in German. At the Lick Observatory, Henry C. Plummer, M. A., has been appointed fellow. He holds his degree from Cambridge University, England, and has been, during the past five years, associated with the University Observatory at Oxford.—Wasp.

THIS DEMANDS INVESTIGATION.

President Roosevelt might obtain startling evidence in support of his race suicide theory from a witness who, last week, testified before Judge Seawell in an action brought by a physician to collect a bill from a benevolent society. The witness, also a physician, acted as a substitute during the absence of the society's medical adviser. In the brief period of his employment, he stated that his practice was chiefly confined to rescuing the wives of members from complications caused by misdirected efforts to escape motherhood. The society is not American, as might be supposed, but is recruited from the most prolific element of our foreign population.—Wasp.

WILL OPPOSE A SMELTER.

The farmers of the eastern end of Contra Costa County are again in arms over the announcement that the Guggenheim Smelter Trust was about to take over the property of the Bull's Head Oil Works, and remove their large plant from Baden to that place. It is the prevailing opinion that if the Guggenheim people are permitted to locate there, that it would mean the ruin of the farming industry. Already the Mountain Copper and the Peyton Chemical Company are established in the vicinity, and they are rated as anything but desirable neighbors by the owners of farming lands and cattle ranches. A formidable opposition may be expected from these interests which are already organizing for the fray.—Wasp.

BIG SALES OF LOTS DAILY IN CITY OF OAKLAND

CITY BLOCKS, WHICH ONCE SOLD FOR THOUSANDS, WORTH MILLIONS

Resurrection of Plot of Land Sold by Regents Generation Ago, With Comparison of Prices.

There have been many sales of realty in this section by auction in years past, and there have been hundreds of maps and plats of these sales issued but how many of them will be in a condition to be produced in 1940 or thirty-three years hence?

It is probable that in the last few years, when property was sold at auction, a number of persons who purchased a lot at one of those sales put aside one of those plats intending to keep it until he or she should be asked to produce it as evidence of the payment on the purchase and then allow it to be memento to disappear from sight.

It will be an exceptional case if, therefore, thirty-three years hence one of those remembrances should be produced for the entertainment and enlightenment of the scribe who will at that time be entrusted with the duty of informing the readers of THE TRIBUNE as to what is going on in the world of realty and development in Oakland.

At that distant day the resurrecting of such a souvenir of the then past will undoubtedly be a matter of interest and the plat will be a curiosity because of the changes in people and methods of things with it.

PAST AND FUTURE

This looking into the future has been occasioned by a little excursion into the past which has been suggested to a representative of this paper by the unveiling of a plat showing a sale of realty in this city on the nineteenth day of September 1874 with no less important personages as sponsors for the sale than the regents of the University of California.

PLAT FOUND

Regular news will be to now that a plat which had been preserved by the regents of that distant date has been resurrected by W. T. Vetter, the well known builder of this city, some days ago that gentleman had a really deal with a resident of this city and among the papers which came into his possession was the plat in question.

Reference to this plat will be of interest not alone to the old residents of this city but also to others of a more recent date as the property which was then disposed of is now in the center of one of the most valuable sections and is about to witness a radical change in the service of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Company, between this city and the big city on the other side of the bay. The property in question in those days was supposed to be the most valuable in this city as it was then situated only a few blocks from the intersection of Broadway and Fourteenth street, where the most valuable property in Oakland is to be found at the present time.

Of course, when the figures of the olden time and those of the present time are contrasted there will be no comparison between the two, although it must be admitted when the values of thirty-three years are taken into consideration that property values were running very high for so distant a day.

STILL HERE.

Regardless of that fact, the price was readily paid. A number of the purchasers still retain the holdings which they purchased at that time and those of their group who have done have now in their group what may be practically termed a fortune. Some of the purchasers of those days have passed away, some have disposed of their purchases but others held on to them till the last moment and, as a consequence, they have laid the foundation for one of the most satisfactory evidences of Oakland's prosperity which could be desired. This reference is made to the late A. Marks because it is upon some of the lots which were disposed of at that time and which were purchased by the deceased that the new hotel of St. Mark is being constructed and the regents of the University of California, although reaching a big figure were merely a drop in the bucket compared with those which obtain at the present time.

LARGE SHEET

The plat in question is fully twice the size of those which are now known to the public. In large type it proclaims that on Saturday September 19, 1874 at Brayton Hall, Oakland, at 2 o'clock by order of the regents of the University of California, E. C. Sessions & Co. and H. A. Cobb of the firm of Maurice Dore & Co. will sell at public auction blocks 178, 182 and 183. These blocks were bounded then as they are now by Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Franklin, Webster and Harrison streets, and the property was to be sold in subdivisions of 50 by 100 feet.

In the estimation of people who were familiar with property values on those days the prices which the lots then brought were about as high as they would be today. This will readily appear from a reference to the prices which the auctioneer was able to secure for the land which the then regents seemed desirous of parting company with.

WORTH MILLIONS NOW.

When the gravel had fallen for the last time the handsome sum of $115,000 had been secured for the three blocks. Today that property is valued at $1,975,000.

Block No. 182 is bounded by Franklin street on the west, Fourteenth street on the north, Webster street on the east and Thirteenth street on the south. This is the block immediately opposite the PROPOSED NEW MUNICIPAL ELECTRIC LIGHTING PLANT OF ALAMEDA.

First Presbyterian Church and is now wholly owned by the Southern Pacific Company and on a part of it is located what is known as the Fourteenth street depot.

The lot at the northwest corner of the square in which for a number of years, was located the little old shanty which, until recently, served as a freight depot of the railroad company, and which lay directly across Fourteenth street from the Presbyterian Church referred to, was bought by C. W. Ried for $2700. The same purchaser bought the lot immediately south of it for $1157. The next lot toward the south was bought by J. I. Bliven for $2100. The next lot toward the south and at the northeast corner of Thirteenth street was also purchased by Bliven and the price he paid for it was $2225. The next two lots which fronted on Thirteenth street were bought by A. J. Snyder, since deceased, and brought $2025 each. The adjoining lot on the southeast corner of Thirteenth and Webster streets was purchased by J. G. Eastland for $2250. The next two lots facing on Webster street were bought by M. J. Frank for $2650 and $2675 respectively. The lot on the northeast corner of Webster and Fourteenth street was knocked down to George Duncan for $2900. The remaining lots in the block which had a frontage on Fourteenth street were sold to M. J. Frank and C. W. Ried for $2050 each.

The total amount received for that block was $31,850. Today that property is valued at the enormous sum of $855,000.

ANOTHER BLOCK.

In block No. 172 which is bounded by Franklin on the west, Twelfth on the south, Webster on the east, and Thirteenth on the north, the lot on the northwest corner was sold to C. W. Ried for $850. Little more than a year ago, this piece of property was sold to the Farmers and Merchants Bank for something like $55,000. This was considered reasonable, even at the time that the sale took place, because the lot is now valued at about $22,500. A. Marks bought the next lot on the south which having a western front on Franklin street, paying for it the sum of $3575. This lot was sold some time ago by the widow of the purchaser of those early days. The more recent purchaser was it is understood R. A. Perry and the amount paid for it is reported to have been $75,000.

Block No. 183 also bought the two lots adjoining on the south, one of which has a frontage on Twelfth street only whereas the other has a frontage on Twelfth and also a side on Franklin street. For the corner lot Marks paid $2775. The Wilson lot of those days is now owned by Harry Williams and the Frank and Snyder lots belong to the Harrison Realty Company. M. J. Frank also bought the adjoining lot on the north fronting on Harrison street the price being $2250. This is the lot which is now owned by the Welsh Paper Co. for which a short time ago $30,000 was refused.

SCOTTISH RITE

George Duncan bought the next two lots toward the north for $4350. These lots are now owned by the Scottish Rite Masons and on one of these is located the cathedral of that organization which fronts on Fourteenth street. These lots are estimated to be worth $50,000. The remaining two lots in that block were secured by J. T. Wilson for $4400. They are now owned by Mrs. Fitzgerald and also valued at $70,000.

In those days Prayton Hall a part of the then University was located on the southeast corner of Thirteenth and Webster streets on the site which is now occupied by the Crane store of plumbing supplies.

Health in the Canal Zone. Final return limit, September 23d, stop over at Shasta Springs, returning. This is an excellent opportunity to thoroughly investigate this new country. Station D Postoffice Shows Growth of Business District

The improvement which has taken place in the southern part of the business district and especially on Broadway and Franklin streets within the past year has been most remarkable. On both those thoroughfares new structures have been built and on Broadway between Sixth and Seventh streets where formerly there was a collection of only second-hand stores there are now fine clothing and jewelry houses all of which are doing a fine business.

NEW FIRMS

Hundreds of new firms have been established in this district in the past year and more especially in the district bounded by Lake Merritt on the east, Market street on the west, Fourteenth street on the north and Oakland harbor on the south.

For a long time the mail service in that district, and especially in the business sections of it, was inadequate to the distance of those sections from the postoffice and the insufficient number of letter carriers which could be secured from the postal department.

STATION D

The carrier force has now been increased and for the purpose of especially accommodating the business houses in the district referred to a branch office has been established on Franklin street immediately north of Eighth street and since that was done the business transacted by that office has been almost phenomenal. An idea of the importance of the branch which is technically known as Station D is received from the following statement made to THE TRIBUNE by J. A. Orlough who is in charge of the office.

STATEMENT OF OFFICE MANAGER

This postoffice was opened August 7, with twenty carriers. Since then there have been 1500 letters and parcels sent on an average, 35,000 letters daily or about one million letters since the inauguration of the enterprise.

There have been dispatched from the office letters to the number of 500,000. Over 1500 letters and parcels have been registered and as many more have been received to be delivered by carriers. There are issued on an average forty-five money orders every day and the sale of stamps and stamped envelopes amount to about $100 each day. Business is increasing daily and there are always three clerks required in the office and at certain times during the day, four clerks have all they can do to wait upon the public.

Hundreds of Oakland Readers Find Daily Toil a Burden.

The hustle and worry of business men, The hard work and stooping of workmen, The woman's household cares, Are too great a strain on the kidneys.

Backache, headache, dizziness, Kidney troubles, urinary troubles follow.

An Oakland citizen tells how to cure them all.

T. H. Wallace, of 115 Eleventh ave. bricklayer, says: "It was so long since I had my first attack of backache that I have forgotten the year it occurred. I was always sure to have a spell when I contracted a cold from exposure to inclement weather or after an extra hard day's work. I had an attack when I noticed Doan's Kidney Pills advertised in the local paper and I went for a box. In a few days the backache disappeared. I will not have the slightest hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills to any of my friends and acquaintances whom I hear complaining of backache which arises from the kidneys not performing their work properly."

HOMES BEING PROVIDED FOR THOSE PEOPLE LOCATING HERE EVERY DAY

At Same Time Close Attention Is Paid to Structures for Industrial and Commercial Pursuits.

While for a number of months past there has been a great deal of activity in the building world in this city and while, as a consequence, there have been added to the manufacturing enterprises of Oakland many institutions which have increased the industrial importance of this city there has always been an effort on the part of capitalists not alone of Oakland but also of the surrounding country to put up buildings which will also house and accommodate in a most satisfactory manner the people who have come from abroad to take up their homes in this vicinity.

So great was the number of people who for some months after the great fire sought shelter here, with the purpose of residing on this side of the bay, that the best efforts of local capitalists were put forth to perform at once an act of humanity and, at the same time, derive a reasonable return from the investment.

CHICAGO METHOD

When Chicago was burned down there were no homes open to the unfortunate who had lost their all in that dreadful catastrophe. The sufferers were compelled to flee with the little they could carry with them and that was a small amount indeed. They had no other city to take refuge in and as a consequence, until they could find sympathetic friends to give them some relief they were obliged to live almost in the open until at length the munificence of the world came to their relief. But before this was accomplished some of the unfortunate were compelled to lie under the stars at night and to suffer under the drenching rains which fell upon them as a consequence of the great disturbance which the elements had undergone as a result of the great fire. There were not, one of those who experienced that misery will ever forget it.

OAKLAND BUILDS

Of course there were people in San Francisco who experienced a great deal of difficulty in finding immediate shelter in this city after the fire but there was not a very long time of suffering on that account. Everything which could be done for the purpose of affording the desired relief had been considered at that time by one of kind or another were provided for almost every person. Of course those places of abode were not of the choicest but they were all that could have been expected under the circumstances. They were at least comfortable and, in the general run of things, there were few complaints made.

LOCAL CAPITALISTS

At the same time local capitalists took the matter in hand. They saw that there were many people among the refugees who would never return to the city beyond the bay and would hereafter, make their homes in this city. This feature of the case appealed to the capitalists of this city and as a consequence since almost the morning of the great catastrophe the local men of means have been providing homes for those from not only San Francisco but also people from all parts of the country who have since located here.

THE RECORDS

The records of the Board of Public Works for the week ending Wednesday last show that this purpose on the part of moneyed men is being carried out as there are more residences and abiding places provided for than there are of any other kind of structure. This is shown by the number of permits granted for homes of various sizes as also for flats in which alone, there are rooms which will accommodate several hundred people. When it is considered that at the same time there are hundreds of buildings in course of construction under permits previously granted, there is no doubt that with this week's building activity, Oakland will be able to accommodate the hundreds who are weekly taking up their abode in this city.

TRADE COMES FROM ALAMEDA SIX STORIES FOR STORAGE

Regular Communication With Tunnel Would Serve Both Cities. Reinforced Concrete Structure With Modern Features for Twenty-ninth Street.

In this department of THE TRIBUNE today will be found a picture of the new storage warehouse of the Lyon Storage and Moving company. This building is to be located on the south side of Twenty-ninth street between Grove and West streets. The structure will have ground dimensions of 50,000 feet and will be six stories in height. It will be of reinforced concrete iron and wire glass. It will be fire earthquake, burglar and vermin proof. In it there will be 400 reinforced concrete apartments. These apartments will be used for storage purposes and will be of two dimensions, one series being 6x9 and the other series 12x12 feet in size. Each compartment will be fire-proof. There will be electric elevators to all floors and the openings on each floor will have safety gates and steel roller doors. All doors will be covered with iron. The window frames and casings will be of iron and the windows will be of wire glass.

STARTING STRUCTURE.

The structure under contemplation is only the nucleus of the building which the concern has in view. The complete building will include structure 15x110 feet which will contain 1000 rooms which will have all the qualities of the rooms already referred to. The structure will be lighted by electricity and the wiring for this purpose will be imbedded in the concrete work. In addition to these advantages there will be a perfect system of ventilation which is at all times most desirable in an institution of this kind. The manager and principal owner of the new undertaking is H. B. Lyon of this city. The president of the company is E. C. Lyon of Los Angeles formerly of this city.

The building has been designed by Morgenthal & Drexler architects of this city and the cost of the structure which is here depicted, irrespective of the building which is eventually to be added to it, will be $20,000.

tenance of the bridge at Webster street as Supervisor Kelley put it in his speech before the Board of Supervisors, is a source of expense, and he is of the opinion that this expenditure of money could be saved to the taxpayers every year.

To find proof of this fact all that one has to do is to watch the street cars which come to this city from the East and the cars which return to that place. The travelers are empty handed when they come here but when they return every one is loaded with bundles which represent the expenditure of money in the stores of this city.

The interruption of this travel whether it be those who come here by wagon carriage or of automobile has an injurious effect upon the trade of this city and seriously disarranges the system of doing business on both sides of the estuary. It also interferes with the comfort and the welfare of the public generally.

The building of a tunnel of the kind proposed would tend to bring the people of the communities together and there is no doubt that eventually with Alameda will become one in name as well as in unity of purpose and geographical location can make them.

It is a well known fact that the main

Monterey

Monterey's geographical location is going to make it the largest city between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Monterey has deep water. Railroads are preparing to build wharves. Steamship lines will receive their cargoes at these railroad terminals. Monterey is advancing rapidly—she has the brightest prospects of any city in California.

All these improvements mean increased population, and this means more homes.

Del Monte Heights

is destined to be the residence section of Monterey. It has the climate, the location and the attractions which make it the most favored place for residences.

Street work is now being done at Del Monte Heights. Parks are being planned. Shade trees are to be planted along the sidewalks. Sewer and water pipes soon to be laid. All necessary improvements will be made.

Now is the time to buy at Del Monte Heights—prices are the lowest they will ever be. Lots $100 to $300 on easy payments. Property will double in value inside of a year.

STRONG CRAFT BUILDING ON THE WATER FRONT

DEMAND FOR BERKELEY REAL ESTATE GROWING VERY FAST
Building Is Active and New Residence Tracts Are Being Opened--Other Improvements in Progress.

BERKELEY, Sept. 7.—The real estate situation in this city is eminently satisfactory. Agents in the business are not complaining and they have no reason to complain. Every office in town reports activity. Every real estate dealer is optimistic. Buyers are plentiful. Values are on the upgrade. Trade is good. Demand for homes is increasing. That means that the city is expanding and population increasing. There is no lack of money. Outside investors are numerous. The inward flow of capital continues. And at no time in Berkeley's history has the future looked brighter.

NEW TRACTS OPENED.
 New tracts of outside lands are being subdivided and thrown on the market. And these are no sooner placed on the sales than applicants begin to flow in. This is an indisputable evidence of public confidence in Berkeley's present condition, but it proves an implicit faith in its future development. The picturesque situations on the hill slopes are very attractive to home-seekers, and it will not be long before these hillside are covered with cozy residences and beautiful homes.

NORTH BERKELEY.
 In this respect North Berkeley continues to force to the front. Its commanding views of the bay and the Golden Gate and the neighboring bay counties are growing daily in popular appreciation and new settlers in that long-neglected section are multiplying.

COMPLETION OF THE CLAREMONT.
 The approaching completion of the Claremont Hotel is stimulating values in that neighborhood. Its opening will mark a new era in the residence attractions of the foothills of the range in its vicinity. As soon as it is finished the life of tourist travel is sure to trend that way and there are many of those who will patronize it who will desire to be permanently domiciled in its neighborhood.

UNIVERSITY IMPROVEMENTS.
 The recent opening of the mining college in the new building of the University buildings has added immensely to the popularity of Berkeley realty, for it has drawn widespread attention to the broad plans of improvement which are in course of development on the University grounds and which promise to make it the largest and most beautiful, as well as the most popular and useful of the big educational institutions of the country.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.
 Street and sanitary improvements in Berkeley are keeping pace with its growth. The city government's progressive spirit is generally appreciated by the people of Berkeley. A mental note of it is made by all visitors whose interest in the city's future is awakened. Self-improvement is a community's prosperity, and there is no section of the east shore of the bay where such plans are more conspicuous than in Berkeley.

STREET-RAILWAY EXTENSIONS.
 New street railway extensions continue to be planned and perfected, while those in course of construction are hastening to completion. These are bringing new territory into close communication with the electric system and opening new sections of desirable territory for home-seekers.

IN THE BUSINESS CENTER.
 Property values in the business center are still rising. The proposed erection of a tall class bank building at the northeast corner of Shattuck Avenue and University way assures permanency to the business quarters, while the prospective conversion of the local steam railroad into an electric line, which is to follow the electrification of the Oakland and Alameda local steam railroads, is an effective factor in the influencing of realty values in this part of the city.

REAL ESTATE DEALERS.
 All of the real estate dealers report increasing inquiries for residence town lots and other realty properties. Trading in realty is steadily increasing. New transfers are multiplying. Nearly all new-comers are buying homes. Building is more active than ever. It is here that there is room here at present for the pessimist, and the horizon of all parts of Berkeley—whether it be the manufacturing business or residence districts—is absolutely free from the suggestion of a cloud to obscure it.

SIX-STORY REINFORCED CONCRETE WAREHOUSE OF LYON COMPANY ON TWENTY-NINTH STREET NEAR GROVE.

YEAR'S WORK IN ALAMEDA

ALAMEDA, Sept. 7.—In the past twelve months 365 houses of all descriptions have been built in this city, or, in other words, one house has been completed for each day of the year. According to the report of Sanitary Inspector Eugene Mallott 687 inspections were made and in 160 houses new plumbing was put in. Sewer connections to the number of 332 were made. The Fifty-Thousand Club is planning to give a big banquet about the first of the coming month. The directorate has been filled and is composed of twenty members. The club is going ahead with its work and results have already been shown.

The Alameda Improvement Club, the North Side Club, the Adelphi Club and the real estate exchange members are working for the success of the bond election which is soon to take place.

All of the improvement clubs are taking an active interest in this election.

USES FOR BONDS.
 The provisions of the bond ordinance call for the expenditure of $305,000, to be divided for the purchase of a park and playground, the improvement of the electric light plant, the purchase of more apparatus for the fire department, the purchase of a site for another public school and for additions to the library.

REALTY DEALERS SANGUINE.
 All of the real estate dealers say that business is good. Secretary Russell of the Fifty-Thousand Club, is kept busy answering the inquiries that come to him about Alameda.

REALTY DEALS OCCUR DAILY--PROPERTY IN DEMAND, WHILE PRICES ARE FIRM AND DO NOT FLUCTUATE

All the real estate men who have been away from their vacation, have returned and now the fall and winter season may be said to be in full swing. Property in the east may be had in the increased demand shown by the advertising columns of THE TRIBUNE and the increased activity which is everywhere apparent, where men in this line of business are to be found.

The people of all lines of business who have been sojourning in the mountains and along the rivers and lakes of the State have also returned, and there will be no more spending, away from home money which has been earned here as has been the case since the season of vacation commenced. As a consequence, there are more people on the streets, in the stores and especially the electric light plant, the purchase of more apparatus for the fire department, the purchase of a site for another public school and for additions to the library.

OWNING THE LAND.
 While the week which closes today has not been prolific of large sales, it has witnessed a number which have rejoiced the hearts of dealers as well as those of the purchasers because many of the latter have for the first time felt the thrill which is experienced when a man realizes that, at last he has become an owner of the soil and that he has started out for the purpose of establishing a home for himself as also for a prospective family.

MANY INQUIRIES.
 The first indication of an active season is the demand for properties of all kinds. Every dealer in the business has informed the representative of THE TRIBUNE that he never had more encouraging requests for property which he commands a fair price. This, the dealer argues, shows that the people have some money left after having had a good time on their vacation.

Some of the dealers have been asked to supply fine residences costing from $8000 to $12,000 and these men declare that, while at the outset that seems to be a rather difficult request to all they declare they have already found persons who are favorable to entertaining propositions for the exchange of their properties for a reasonable advance upon what the structures cost. The worry that was experienced and the time spent in getting them into condition. People who want homes of this kind are supposed to have means, and at the same time they are anxious to get into comfortable quarters before the storms of winter arrive.

ASKING FOR LOTS.
 There are other dealers who have a multiplicity of demands for vacant lots in various parts of the city and there is little difficulty in supplying these demands for the reason that there is no part of the city which is not being sought where he will not find choice and slightly lots surrounded by thriving communities, in which there is a certainty of the purchaser experiencing an increase in value before the end of the season.

NEWARK.
 Newark—A manufacturing city on the bay shore, where land and water transportation meet.

People who want homes of this kind are supposed to have means, and at the same time they are anxious to get into comfortable quarters before the storms of winter arrive.

OWNING THE LAND.
 While the week which closes today has not been prolific of large sales, it has witnessed a number which have rejoiced the hearts of dealers as well as those of the purchasers because many of the latter have for the first time felt the thrill which is experienced when a man realizes that, at last he has become an owner of the soil and that he has started out for the purpose of establishing a home for himself as also for a prospective family.

NEWARK.
 Newark—A manufacturing city on the bay shore, where land and water transportation meet.

That, while at the outset that seems to be a rather difficult request to all they declare they have already found persons who are favorable to entertaining propositions for the exchange of their properties for a reasonable advance upon what the structures cost. The worry that was experienced and the time spent in getting them into condition. People who want homes of this kind are supposed to have means, and at the same time they are anxious to get into comfortable quarters before the storms of winter arrive.

INDUSTRIES ON LOCAL HARBOR.

Barges, Dredgers and Steamers Costing Thousands Near Completion.

The activity which was referred to in these columns last week as being visible on the water front, is not confined to the section west of Broadway. Indeed, it extends to the extreme limit of the estuary, as far as there is a possibility of navigating the stream with a row boat.

New enterprises are springing up every day and new residents are making their abode there and increasing the volume in all lines of business.

MANUFACTURING ACTIVITY.
 In the manufacturing concerns, there is unwonted activity. The men are all well paid. There are in some instances working over time for the reason that their employers are loaded down with orders for which there is a request for a speedy delivery. Of course, for this over work, there is extra pay and as a consequence, the operatives are contented and happy and the same state of mind is experienced by the far-seeing men who have invested their money in this part of the city and who are securing a liberal return on their investment.

In the Standard Gas company's plant there are only about a hundred men employed at this time for the reason that the management has not been able to get the tools which it needs for its plant. This is due to a variety of causes and misfortunes. In the first place, the concerns in the East where the orders were placed, more than a year ago, were unable to fill the same at the time or for months later, because of the orders which had been on file before the local orders were received. When, at length, the orders were partially filled, and the tools were put on the cars, the trains got into a blockade and there they remained for a number of months and it was thought, for a time, that the order had been lost. Trainers were sent out for the purpose of trying to locate the missing materials and it was only a few days ago that some of the cars containing the tools that had been ordered were located in the City of New York, farther from their destination than they were when they started for this city. Just as soon as these tools arrive here the works in question will be run to their utmost capacity.

NOW RESIDE IN OAKLAND.
 Most of the men employed in this shop were former residents of San Francisco, but with the removal of the plant from that city to Oakland, they have come with it and now have established comfortable homes in the eastern part of the city.

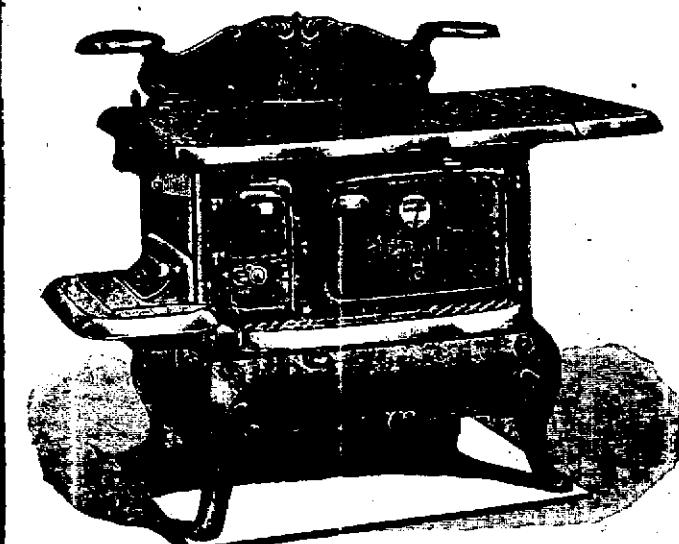

Superintendent Mohrdelek who has charge of the works, was asked how many of his operatives resided in Oakland and replied that at least eighty per cent of them had established permanent homes in the vicinity of the works. They were there to stay, too, he said, for the reason that they were good workmen, and as they were sure of steady employment they saw that it was to their interest to be as close to their work as possible. Many of them had become so greatly pleased with the climate of this city that they could not tolerate the idea of crossing the bay night and morning for the purpose of making a living when they could find employment and contentment on this side of the bay.

SHIPPING FACILITIES.
 One of the advantages which this company, and the same is true of all the other manufacturing firms in that neighborhood, has is the facilities afforded for the shipping of their products from the very doors of the factory, by the railroad on the one hand and by ships and steamers on the other. The Southern Pacific Railroad supplies one of these facilities by means of a spur track and the steamers Grace Barton and the Sunol supply the other. These boats make trips to that section on Tuesday and Friday of each week, both vessels calling on the same days, one making the run from this city and the other from San Francisco.

STANDARD OIL BARGE.
 At the Union Gas Engine Company, there are three hundred men at work and they do not seem to have the time to look even momentarily at the visitor. They are all as busy as bees working on a big contract for the Standard Oil Company. This company is adding to its fleet of vessels for transportation purposes, an immense steel oil barge and for this the factory is building four engines, two of which will be of 250 horse-power each. These will be for the purpose of propulsion and there will be two other engines of lesser power also placed on the barge.

MONSTER DREDGER.
 At the Atlas Gas Engine Works, there are ninety men at work. Of this number, forty-eight are workers in iron and the others are carpenters. All are engaged on a dredger which will have the proportions of a leviathan.

FOURTH AVENUE TERRACE

Tomorrow or Admission Day

Scores of lots will be sold.

The reason—because this is one of the most beautiful sites for homes ever placed on the market in the West or anywhere in the country, and the price—as low as $600—astonishes every man who sees the tract.

But remember—these prices last only two days more.

No more sales at these prices after Tuesday next at 8 A. M., when the prices on every unsold lot will be raised and every buyer TO-DAY will make a profit.

The Fourth Avenue Car runs direct to the tract and leaves Twelfth and Broadway every few minutes.
